THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU
Columbus, June 11.

COLUMBUS — (Special) — Since William E. Halley, clerk of the Ohio Senate and a sort of field man in this state for the federal wing of the Republican party, was not elevated to the vice-chairmanship of the Republican national committee, questions have come to be asked. This, moreover, in view of the stories from Washington, where honeymoon days are ending. Heads are being scratched in sort of puzzling ways and wonder is expressed whether the national administration, which means United States Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, did not really want Mr. Halley, or whether Mr. Daugherty is holding him back to manage his prospective senatorial campaign, or whether the Republican national committee is not so sure, after all, that it wishes the party tied up completely to the administration in power. Since the Ohio state Republican committee is away from Hon. Harry Davis and hence recognizes him as a Republican Governor, the last diagnosis is not so terribly far-fetched. These are days of new rules in many things and for breaking of precedents.

According to these stories, at least, the committee men who went to Washington had messages of remarkable uniformity. The party is suffering. The idle minds and idle limbs and empty cars on the side tracks and hoboos along the track and those discouraged and angry farmers are mighty poor signs for them. The country has been waiting but as the months slip past with only words, words, words and no deeds that improve conditions, there is growing up an internal factional feeling that finds many ways of expressing itself. At present it is in the questioning state and while the party is still appearing united, the unity is still of the questioning type. What is proposed to be done? The days of merely hopeful speeches and of promises without works leave good party men wondering and wondering. It would not be astonishing, then, if the departure to the far west for a national vice chairman had real significance.

At the Washington meeting, Ohio's absentee national committee man, Ralph K. Hynicka, occasional resident of Cincinnati, was not conspicuous. He has other business, not the least of which is to demonstrate that he is still a power in the Queen City of the west. Unless a hasty compromise is arranged, he must fight it out with the Halley-Daugherty crowd there for control in the August primaries and a merry scrap it will be. If the anti-Hynicka forces do win something, they are prepared to be indifferent to the results of the fall campaign and for the first time in nearly a decade the second city of Ohio may be given a mayor of party faith different from its normally state. While the factions are apparently both for Mayor John Calvin, the loyalty is of a personal rather than a political nature and knives are out to whack and not merely for dress purposes. The more conservative party men urge that these bickerings be stopped just as they have been urging the Governor and his advisers to cease their warring tactics in the state at large. But the party is still strong in the faith of invincibility and hence cannot reconcile itself to the idea that there is any danger. Perhaps there would not be if the mills and mines were running and the products of the farm were moving freely.

The alignment of candidates, for the coming primary is indicative of one thing and that is that the defeated Democrats of last fall are anxious to renew the fight. There are reports of an unusually large number of Jacksonian candidates for mayoralty and minor municipal offices. Why this should be so is not quite clear, except for the basis of the feeling that there is in readiness another change of mind from last fall. In Cleveland, Toledo, Canton, Youngstown and scores of other cities with partisan slants to municipal government, the ways are being cleared for action. It was significant that in Hamilton the Democratic organization got behind City Solicitor Koehler to make sure a November clean-up. The hopes of those who expected to profit by party division went down and the opposition choice lost its value in that same minute. In Cleveland, there is a little delay about the

HALF OF FUND TO KEEP BABY IS SUBSCRIBED

$248.50.
That is the sum generous Lima has contributed so far to help a

Lima mother keep her babe when it is born.

The fund is half subscribed. At least $500 is needed to take care of this worthy woman until she may work to keep her child.

Organized charity here has taken care of her needs in the way of a house, food and clothing. That organization, however, with the great number of worthy cases, has not enough money to provide for the mother until she is able to work.

To prevent the little one from being snatched from her as soon as it is brought into the world, The Lima News has started a subscription fund. Money in any amount is accepted.

This case has been thoroughly investigated and the woman has been found worthy. She has been deserted by her husband, who was never a good provider when with her. He now is marked up as a deserter from the United States navy.

HAS FOUR CHILDREN
She has four children, three of whom are in the children's home. Her greatest desire is to keep the baby to which she will give birth very soon. The fund subscribed will be used for this purpose. She will also keep her youngest child, leaving the others in the home for the present.

The money subscribed is placed in trust in the American Bank, which will pay it out on orders from Mrs. Irene Mills Jackson, head of the home service of the Red Cross. She is thoroughly acquainted with the case and will arrange a budget and personally supervise expenditure of the money.

Every cent will be used exclusively for the support of the mother and her two little ones. There is no expense in connection with this campaign to require a penny of the money subscribed.

It is desired that this fund be completed before the birth of the child and for that reason it will be closed Tuesday night. Subscriptions in any sum, are desired and those who will help keep this little one with its mother and prevent its adoption into the home of a stranger are asked to send their contributions to The Editor of The Lima News as soon as possible.

2 YANKEES DROWN

Lose Lives While Watering
Horses in Germany.

COBLENZ — Two American soldiers, Corporal Samuel Carvey, of Hopewell, N. J., and Private Anton Holson, of Cleveland, Ohio, were drowned watering horses. Both were members of Battery F., of the sixth field artillery.

Holson's horse stepped into a hole and killed his calf for help and to save him but was dragged under by Holson.

Comrades of the men recovered their bodies.

GABLE IN BATTLE

Representative Knight Is
"Bitter Ender" of Delegation

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU
Washington, June 11.

WASHINGTON. — (Special) — It's a hot night when the Ohio delegation can't stir up a hot tussle at its fortnightly caucus.

The atmosphere was sufficiently tempered Monday night to give several of its members cause to be unruly and if it isn't the atmosphere, it's the Administration, because several were bumptious at the session.

Representative John G. Cooper, of Youngstown, who formerly was the workingman's candidate, was the central figure. He kept the delegation — not from going to sleep — but from going home for four sultry hours while he harangued on disarmament and the efficacy of the Borah disarmament resolution.

Representative Theodore E. Burton, who, incidentally, has not panned out to be the main spring that his friends expected he would be as a Congressman, and Representative James T. Begg, of Sandusky, who with Mr. Burton, is of the Foreign Affairs committee, used both arms to keep Mr. Cooper's figurative shirt on.

It was odd the manner in which all but one of the Ohio delegation voted for disarmament on the following day. And he wasn't, Mr. Cooper. Mr. Cooper got up to tell the House he was one Republican who would vote for reducing taxes by reducing the 1916 building program but he wasn't one to vote to permit the Conference committee to emasculate the Borah amendment — the first available step toward disarmament.

That is the story of Representative John G. Cooper and disarmament.

The one man in the delegation who voted his views on the majority proposition to send the Naval Appropriations bill to conference without instructing the congress to retain the Borah amendment, was Representative Charles L. Knight, of Akron.

Mr. Knight is developing his Bull Moose foundation into the position of being the "bitter-ender" of the delegation. He voted "no."

Of more than passing interest to Ohioans was the fight the Ohioans made this week to have the six defendants indicted for the five Ohio offices where disabled ex-service men can apply for relief.

Representative John L. Cable, of Lima, was the first to see the danger in the bill and expressed himself in emphatic language last week. Others took his cue, but it was not until Thursday that they were able to follow with action.

The result is that the bill was not amended and that Northrup, Ohio, now served by offices at Toledo and Cleveland, in the future will be dealt with out of Cincinnati. "It is a far cry from economy in naval building to economy in administering to the victims of the war, but the majority prevailed.

In the fight beside Mr. Cable were Representative James T. Begg, of Sandusky, and Representative W. W. Chalmers, of Toledo. Mr. Chalmers gave a particularly touching admonition to the proponents of the bill.

"I have read in my home paper of yesterday," he told the House, "of four funerals held in Toledo in one day for world war heroes, John P. McVerney, 23; Arthur Daley, 21; Toledo Wobleski, but 17 when he enlisted in the service and Vernon McCune."

"We can't bring these martyrs back to life, but we can take care of their comrades who have come back to us maimed and crippled. They don't want to be state charges. All they ask of us is to show them the way to become self-supporting citizens."

"There are 2,000 of them in the Toledo district, and now, just as they are beginning to rise into the sunshine of hope, by this vicious section you are knocking the crutches out from their support and letting them fall back into dismal despair."

Even this failed.

The strained effort of friends of William C. Halley, Clerk of the Ohio Senate, to have him appointed Secretary of the Republican National committee, may contain some balm. Of course, there was no possibility of him having the job unless Clarence B. Miller, of Iowa, resigned.

Blood Given
By Grubb To Save Friend

Transfusion of blood was made necessary Saturday to save the life of Roland B. Mikesell of the office department of the Blum store, now a patient at the City hospital.

J. Allen Grubb of the Flower Shop, gave the blood which was transfused into Mikesell's veins. The two men have been friends for many years, being closely associated in the world of music. Both are talented singers.

Mikesell showed marked improvement after the operation had been completed. Word from the hospital last night was that he was rapidly improving.

Mikesell was taken to the hospital a week ago, after he had fallen in a faint at his work in the Blum store. At that time it was believed his condition was not serious and he would soon be out of the hospital.

Hemorrhages developed and it is feared there is perforation of a bowel. Continued loss of blood made transfusion of new life-giving fluid in the veins necessary.

HEADS INDICTED

Six Toledo Men Accused of Conspiracy to Defraud.

RECEIVERS ARE APPOINTED

Thoro Investigation of Modern Glass Company Ordered.

TOLEDO — Six officials and former officers of the Modern Glass Company, a $1,000,000 concern were indicted by the federal grand jury Saturday on the charges of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud and conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses.

Those named in the indictments are:

Cornelius J. Nolan, vice-president and general manager of the company; John Newton, treasurer of the company; County Treasurer-elect John Newton; Frank Vickery, secretary; Herbert C. Victory; assistant secretary and Walter J. Lumbaleau, former sales promoter. Fifty witnesses were heard during the investigation.

The indictment charges that the six defendants devised a scheme and artifice and defrauded the 4,500 stockholders of the concern.

Frank Kennison and J. W. Lyons, were appointed by Federal Judge Killits as receivers after the affairs of the company had been badly tangled.

Judge Killits in the receivership hearing suggested that a complete ventilation of the case be made. W. H. Boyd, prominent Cleveland attorney, appointed by Attorney General Daugherty to handle the investigation.

ALIEN MINERS ARE

ROUTED BY MOBS

Several Hundred Families Driven
From Indiana Coal Fields.

PRINCETON, Ind. — Several hundred foreign-born miners have been driven out of the coal fields of Gibson and Pike counties by terrorism of organized bands, it was learned here Saturday night.

Native-born miners, formed in mobs and vigilante committees whose battle cry is "America for Americans" have forced whole families of foreign-born workmen to flee the mining district.

Raid on Francisco, Oakland City, Petersburg and Rosmer by mobs aggregating 1,000 started a fight and continued until Saturday night. No physical damage was done the workers, according to reports received here, but they were threatened if they tarried.

It is thought that the trouble grew up because of the unemployment situation. The foreign-born, most of whom are Austrians and Hungarians, migrated here recently when mining became slack in Illinois. Since then, several mines in this district, have been working only part-time and it is thought that the mobs were formed so that participants could get to work.

All the miners who were driven out carried union cards, as did those suspected of forcing them to flee.

The visit of the mob to Oakland City, was followed by hurried departure of over 100 Austrians and Hungarians who left the city and fled without getting their belongings.

Later reports here Saturday night stated that all was quiet in the mining district and that all foreign-born had taken refuge in nearby towns.

MRS. KABER'S
TRIAL IS SET

CRIME VEIL LIFTS

Mystery Unravelled Thru Relentless Pursuit by the Slain Man's Father

CLEVELAND — Echoes of medieval romance lurk in the shadows of the Kaber murder mystery, now being unraveled, piece by piece, here.

Five women and three men now are involved. So far most of the attention has centered on the grandmother, daughter and grand-daughter.

Poisoners, hired assassins, spiritualism, the "black art," money madness, infatuation and psychic influence all figure in the strangest and most mysterious in the history of Ohio. Intertwined through the mystery is a story of the relentless pursuit of an aged father to bring to justice the slayers of his son. A mother's devotion to her children also figures in the story.

Daniel F. Kaber, wealthy Lakewood publisher, was dragged from his bed where he lay paralyzed with neuritis and stabbed 24 times in the hips and abdomen, on the night of July 13, 1919. The Kaber home had been ransacked and silverware strewn on the floor, lending the appearance of burglary.

WIDOW EXONERATED
Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, widow of the slain man, was held pending an investigation. A coroner's jury exonerated her, however, and returned a verdict that Kaber had met his death while attempting to thwart burglars.

But events took a sudden turn about two weeks ago and Mrs. Kaber now stands indicted for first degree murder in connection with the killing of her husband. Miss Marian McArdle, daughter of Mrs. Kaber by a former marriage, also is indicted on a first degree murder charge. Both mother and daughter pleaded not guilty when arraigned in common pleas court today. Their trial was set for June 28.

Kaber's elderly father, Moses Kaber, entered into the story after the coroner's verdict two years ago. The father did not believe that his son had met death accidentally. He quietly set to work collecting evidence. Private detectives were employed, who investigated and trailed many people against whom the slightest suspicion had been cast.

ARREST OF MRS. KABER

Two weeks ago, Moses Kaber had collected enough evidence to warrant placing the case in the hands of county authorities. The county grand jury returned a secret indictment against the widow, Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, charging her with first degree murder. Mrs. Kaber, who had been under surveillance by private detectives in New York, where she had been living since Kaber's death, disappeared the day the indictment against her was returned.

Cleveland detectives were hurried to New York, where, with the cooperation of New York detectives, Mrs. Kaber was located and arrested a week ago Saturday at the apartment of a woman friend.

The day after Mrs. Kaber's arrest in New York, her mother, Mrs. Mary Brickel, following an all-night grilling, broke down and made a complete confession of the murder plot. Mrs. Brickel in her signed confession, said that her daughter had hired assassins to do away with Kaber. Mrs. Brickel said that she and her grand-daughter knew of the plot and had broken into the buffet and spread the silverware on the floor to make it look like a burglary.

Mrs. Brickel was indicted by the grand jury for murder, following her confession, as was her grand-daughter, Marian McArdle. The latter was arrested in New York, while visiting her mother in jail.

Mrs. Kaber, at first stoutly denied any connection with the crime, but on Friday, the day before she and her daughter were returned to Cleveland, broke down and in a statement, said that she had hired two men to go to the Kaber home and "beat up Dan." She denied that she wanted him killed, but that the beating was to be administered in order to make him more respectful to her.

Arsenic found in Kaber's stomach was explained by Mrs. Kaber as being "medicine" administered to Kaber to cure him of habits disrespectful to her. Mrs. Kaber said in her statement that this "medicine" had been furnished her by a midwife, now under arrest here.

Police believe that this midwife also furnished the assassins. One of the men thought to be the actual wielders of the knife, is now under arrest here. The arrest of the second was expected momentarily.

The midwife, who hired the assassins and furnished the poison was expected to be indicted shortly, along with another woman, who, it is charged, actually administered the poison to Kaber.

Youth In Prison
Believed Member
Of Bandit Gang

State authorities believe they have discovered another member of the McGann-Townsend gang, which was broken up here by police, some weeks ago. He is Harry Foster, 17, recently sentenced to Mansfield reformatory for robbery.

Foster's suitcase was found by Columbus authorities Saturday. They have been searching for it for weeks. Pictures of the local gang were found together with a clipping from a newspaper relating the escape of two prisoners from the Michigan state penitentiary. A letter also found, addressed to Foster, expressing regret at the breaking up of the gang here.

All efforts to get a statement from Foster have proven futile.

UNION HEAD'S JAIL

TERM AFFIRMED

State Supreme Court Upholds
Sentence in Kansas.

ANTI-STRIKE ACT TEST CASE

Will Be Appealed to National's
Highest Tribunal.

TOPEKA, Kansas — In the most sweeping decision yet handed down affecting validity of the Kansas industrial court law, the state supreme court Saturday affirmed the decision of the Crawford district court sentencing Alexander Howat to one year in jail for contempt. The law was held valid on each of the eight issues raised.

Referring to the court, the decision sets forth:

"The act creating the court of industrial relations is a reasonable and valid exercise of the police power of the state over the business of producing coal, and does not impair liberty of contract or permit involuntary servitude contrary to the constitution of the United States."

INJUNCTION VIOLATED

The opinion, which was written by Justice R. A. Burch and concurred in by all of the supreme court judges, emphatically states that production of coal is affected with a public interest and subject to state regulation and control.

Howat, who is president of the Kansas miners' union, was found guilty of contempt of court for violating an injunction which the state had previously obtained against mine union officials to prevent calling of a strike in the Pittsburg district.

The strike was threatened, industrial court members believed, in defiance of the power of the state and to definitely test the new industrial law.

WILL APPEAL

Howat was found guilty and sentenced to a year in jail. His appeal to the state supreme court followed immediately. The case undoubtedly will go to the United States supreme court for final determination, Richard J. Hopkins, attorney general, said Saturday.

The court's opinion states that Howat was not entitled to a trial by jury in the contempt proceedings and that the injunction was not invalid as an attempt to enjoin crime.

HAYNES SWORN IN

Ohioan Takes Over Reins as Prohibition Commissioner.

WASHINGTON — Roy A. Haynes, of Hillsboro, O., was sworn in Saturday as prohibition commissioner, succeeding John F. Kramer, of Mansfield, Ohio, the first national prohibition enforcement officer.

Mr. Haynes said he had no general policy as yet for the conduct of the prohibition office, but that he hoped he could bring home to the people of the country a full appreciation of the importance of the eighteenth amendment.

"I am deeply sensible," he said, "of the high honor accorded me in my appointment to the office of federal prohibition commissioner, but I am not deeply sensible of the tremendous responsibility involved. At this time I merely want to state that I expect to bring to the administration of the office every ounce of ability and energy there is in me."

Mr. Kramer, the retiring commissioner, said that while he had not yet definitely decided upon his future plans, he probably would return to Mansfield and engage in the practice of law there.

ROTARY PLANS CHANGED

Owing to the fact that families conditions in China are greatly alleviated, the speaker who was to present the needs of this country to the Rotary Club at its Monday luncheon, will not be present. As a result, the original program planned will not be carried out. Ralph Austin, acting president of the organization, stated that the regular luncheon would be held but that no special program would be prepared.

OFFICER MAY BE RELIEVED OF NAVY JOB

Leave of Absence In England Is Revoked by Secretary Denby

RESULT OF SPEECH

Expected to be Removed from Command of Naval College at Newport

WASHINGTON — Rear Admiral Sims' recent speech in London, in which, according to reports, he attacked Sinn Feiners in America, may result in his resignation from the Navy, according to views expressed in official Washington, Saturday night.

Sims' leave of absence in England was revoked Saturday by Secretary Denby and he was ordered to report at once to the secretary of the navy. Mr. Denby's action was taken without waiting for a reply from the officer to the secretary's cablegram asking whether he had been correctly quoted as attacking Sinn Fein sympathizers in the United States in a speech delivered in London this week.

Admiral Sims had announced that he would sail for home from England on June 16. He was granted leave of absence to go abroad to receive a degree from an English university.

WONT HASTEN RETURN

The naval secretary's cablegram sent today to the officer, said: "Remainder your leave revoked. You will return to the United States immediately and report in person to the secretary of the navy. Acknowledge."

Mr. Denby's order was not expected to expedite Admiral Sims' return from England. The liner Olympic, on which the officer already planned to return was the first available ship for the trip when he booked passage.

ANGERED AT DELAY

Anger at Sims' delay in answering his original orders regarding his anti-Irish speech in London, caused Secretary Denby to give summary orders that the admiral return "immediately" to the United States. It was learned officially Saturday night.

Denby felt that Sims had unnecessarily delayed in replying to his original cable directing that officer to confirm or deny the London speech.

Denby's action Saturday was regarded as the first step in disciplinary action against Admiral Sims.

When Sims reached Washington, Denby will administer a personal reprimand to him for the London speech. It was believed confidently here Saturday night. Denby himself, however, would not say what further action he would take, except that the whole question will be threshed out between him and Sims when the latter reaches the navy department.

NAVY MESSON

Relief of Admiral Sims from command of the United States naval college at Newport, his present assignment, also was regarded as a probable step by the naval secretary.

"It is believed, undoubtedly will cause Admiral Sims to resign from the service. The date for Sims to retire from the navy under the age rule is near at hand."

Secretary Denby reiterated that his latest action was not prompted by any outside influence, either from the president or members of congress interested in the case.

6,000 Italians Held at New York to Be Admitted.

WASHINGTON — The immigration bars placed by congress were being lifted temporarily Saturday night to admit 6,000 Italians held at the ports of New York and Boston.

The immigrants had been held because the June quota allowed Italy by the immigration restriction bill had been exhausted.

Immigration Commissioner Husband and Secretary of Labor Davis took advantage of an emergency clause in the law to admit the immigrants under bond. They will be charged against the July quota of Italians permitted to land here.

Just before the action of the department was announced the house immigration committee reported emergency legislation to admit immigrants. This will probably be dropped now.

The Italians followed negotiations between Italian Ambassador Ricci with the state department, which in turn took the matter up with the immigration authorities. Ricci was understood to have pointed out the 15 days' notice given before the immigration law became effective was insufficient and that the immigrants were already at sea before the law went into operation.

147TH PAY HONOR TO GALBRAITH

10,000 Persons in Cincinnati Funeral Procession...

CINCINNATI—Nobody in Cincinnati ever had such a funeral as Fred Galbraith's. The national commander of the American Legion, killed in an automobile accident in Indianapolis Wednesday, went to his grave Saturday along a path of glory lined with hundreds of thousands of spectators and strewn with flowers showered from an airplane. His coffin body was lashed to a gun carriage, with six of his own doughboys marching, helmeted, by his side, and his old horse "Bob" behind him. The men of his regiment, the 147th, whom he led thru St. Michel, Argonne and Flanders, once more marched behind their old commander in a procession of 10,000 soldiers and citizens. The national commander of the Legion lay in state for four hours before the services in Music Hall, the city's largest auditorium. And among the flowers there was a nosegay of humble field daisies, grown from seeds brought from France—tribute of the mothers of soldiers for whom Galbraith had done kindnesses.

And there was a wreath that was the tribute of the people of Alsace and Lorraine and a palm leaf—symbol of victory—that bespoke the gratitude of the town of Chateau Thierry. Speeches were made by Frank d'Olier, former national commander of the Legion; Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, and Rev. John F. Herget, who was chaplain of Galbraith's regiment. And after the speeches, Captain De Le Verge of the French embassy, in behalf of the president of France, bestowed on Galbraith the order of Commander of the Legion of Honor of France. Four polius in the sky-blue service uniform of the French army stood at salute while the captain pinned the medal of the order to the flag draping the casket.

Proposal to Extend Commission Plan to County

POLITICS IN POLICE FIGHT

Fourth District Postmaster is Removed

(By J. W. FISHER)

Big ideas are sometimes born out of selfishness, but not always. In fact, it is more often that they are not, particularly in politics. This sentiment is quite applicable to a new and rather the force in connection with a proposed union of at least a portion of the government of Lima and Allen-co.

The plan is this, broached by men who have had and still have, to do with the management of the affairs of the city and who have been rather reckless in the matter of the expenditure of the people's money for things looked upon as unnecessary in many instances. Consequently, when these folks talk about a union of city and county government, as they are now suggesting, the thing doesn't make a strong appeal. In fact, there is considerable pooh-poohing and scoffing about it.

Lima will nominate candidates for city commissioner in November, and the board is to employ a city manager. The new form of government becomes effective January 1, 1922. The latest political proposition brought to the fore and now being given the once-over by leaders of both the old parties, is to bring the affairs of Allen-co under the same sort of plan as in fact, a union of governments so far as most of the departments of public welfare are concerned.

Those who have "discovered" the advisability of such a plan, claim to have found a special statute under which that same can be accomplished; provided, of course, the people of the remainder of Allen-co outside of Lima and the people of this city too, can be made to see the wisdom of such a move. If successfully worked out, the plan would embalm the necessity of further construction or possible change in the matter of a city hall. For the most part there would be a union of city and county government activities under the dome of the court house, but a larger structure there might be necessary.

What is purported as good authority is cited by the suggesters of the plan for a union of city and county government, the management of the affairs of the county and city being vested in a board of commissioners having jurisdiction in both city and county, the city manager's activities being extended to all parts of the county, or a county manager employed.

The prime movers in the plan point out that at present two auditors, two treasurers, two surveyors, two clerks and other officials with their numerous assistants are now being maintained, where one in each department, with necessary help, would answer the purpose, under the union plan. It is pointed out, too, by the enthusiasts, that there are too many courts and that these could be consolidated for city and county. They hold that about the only impractical part of the plan would be a union of the police and sheriff's department and bringing the fire department under the combined idea.

It's a big subject, one that has many ramifications, and which would require a small amount of consideration and study in the determination of its general effect in application. Several years' time would be necessary to bring the idea into practical working order, but those back of it assert that they intend to get busy instantly, sowing the seeds of information, the opening of a campaign of education as "where in behalf of the big idea."

Carried out in its entirety, the plan that is now in a precarious embryonic condition, would make such sweeping changes as to upset most all existing political order and is of such magnitude as to stagger the old line politician in contemplation. But it hasn't been accomplished and probably will not be for years. In fact, the very possibility of it depends upon the success or failure of the commission-manager form of government Lima is now setting about to adopt. Such changes never do come hurriedly.

Deductions on the part of a numerous contingent that the activities of Mayor F. A. Burkhardt against the police department is a cleverly laid plan to continue himself in office, as a member of the board of city commissioners, may be all wrong, but there is no law or precedent or anything to prevent anyone who so chooses to feel that way about it or see it in that light.

The purist mayor's Anthony Comstock campaign against rolled down stockings and the pursuit of hootch vendors has been prosecuted with vim, the complaint is frequently heard from many persons, to the detriment of other and more important features of the city's welfare. In the matter of finances, it is pointed out by many citizens in discussing the situation, that the city is almost upon the rocks, while executive time is being given abundantly to other things of less consequence.

Getting an ear close to the ground, a careful watcher for evidence of the trend of things generally, can easily detect rumblings among those who believe in their city, in opposition to the course of the administration in matters that appear to them to be making mountains of the impression going out to the world at large that Lima is the jumping off place for the hot regions, whereas in truth and in fact it is really one of the most desirable and progressive and prosperous cities, from the standpoint of business and manufacturing, and as a place of residence, to be found anywhere, while the standard of its citizenship ranks high.

No one doubts that the mayor is honest in his endeavors to "clean up" Lima, as he sees it, but the conclusion cannot be denied that there is evidence of his being ill-advised. Certain it is that amid the howling out of police officials, the laying of charges without names or dates, and without witnesses designated, is having a deleterious effect on all departments of city activity. By direct cast suspicion is cast and adherents of the belief in said and sane government are bewildered, unable to understand, and it is receiving a black eye among those of other localities who are not acquainted with the conditions here, only as they absorb them from the fight made on the police department by the mayor.

Washington dispatches that tell of the removal of a postmaster from his job and the story of two different things, meaning just this: The Washington advices are silent on the matter of who was responsible for the postmaster losing out, while affording the information that the Congressman in Washington, in the person of Postmaster General Will Hays, He is summarily removed, charged with undue political activity during the 1920 campaign. This is believed to be the first step of its kind, in Ohio or any other state, taken by the Harding administration under the terms of the civil service law, a measure that dispense cordially when its use is detrimental to that well organized body.

Postmaster H. W. Murdy of Bradford, over in Miami-co, has felt the axe, manipulated by the headman of the Washington, in the person of Postmaster General Will Hays. He is summarily removed, charged with undue political activity during the 1920 campaign. This is believed to be the first step of its kind, in Ohio or any other state, taken by the Harding administration under the terms of the civil service law, a measure that dispense cordially when its use is detrimental to that well organized body.

In fact, the promulgation by President Wilson of an executive order, in conformity with the civil service, affecting the rule of procedure in the selection and retention of postmasters, was looked upon with hatred by his political enemies. They would have none of it after they secured the reins of government. Not they! But we have been treated to the strange spectacle of President Harding and Postmaster General Will Hays hugging the civil service law to their bosoms most fondly and using its provisions as first aid in bringing about the retirement of postmasters not to their liking.

All of which recalls the quaint saying: "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be; when the devil was well, a devil of a monk was he."

When the application of the civil service law militated against G. O. P., it was poison, but when it could be used as an aide to adding to party power, it was accepted as a panacea.

The significant statement is made in Washington dispatches that Congressman John L. Cable has been asked to nominate an acting postmaster for Bradford and that it is understood his choice will be Paul Hart, a former service man. There's nothing like being prepared for an eventuality.

All question concerning the future plans of United States Senator Atlee Pomerene have been set at rest by an authorized statement from the Senator that he intends to stand as a candidate for re-election. Rumors galore concerning the intentions of Senator Pomerene were floating up and down the state, in and out of Washington and Columbus.

Arthur P. Black, Pomerene's secretary, says there isn't anything more certain in Ohio politics than that Senator Pomerene will be a candidate to succeed himself. This is regarded as the first gun in the Senator's campaign for re-election. The Ohioan has been variously suggested as a candidate for Governor, for a position as a Justice of the Supreme court and a few other things, but he hasn't taken any of them. He has also been mentioned as a possible Presidential aspirant.

The announcement made by Black has further bolstered up Republican plans. It is now assured that to come anywhere near success in the November election for United States Senator, it will be necessary for the G. O. P. to place in nomination the strongest possible candidate. And it is realized that Governor Harry L. Davis is not that man. The number of Ohio Republicans who are well satisfied with Senator Pomerene's services in the Senate is not at all surprising, but it indicates that party lines are likely to be lax in the Senatorial contest.

Senator Pomerene, it must be said, is a bitter foe of radicalism. He has no use for a radical either way on any question. He has the courage to cast expense out of the window, into the ash heap, in maintaining a middle-of-the-road course on public measures, which, after all, is the only safe and sane thing to do.

The G. O. P. will watch Pomerene for evidences of action designed to aid his candidacy. Unless he deviates from his past record, it will be found that Senator Pomerene will not permit his Senatorial status to swerve him from his safe and sane course on all measures.

Generally there is a method in one's madness. This fits in well with the action of Governor Davis in peremptorily adjourning the Legislature. At first blush the average citizen will approve of his action, because the lawmaking body so signally failed to do the things for which it was elected. Political sharpshooters have had a more prominent place than public duty in the performance.

Were ordinary conditions prevailing, the Governor would be given the plaudits of the people for his action, but those who have been on guard know abundantly that the Governor is jointly to blame for the failure of the legislative bodies. The present state administration opened with cheap politics and grandstand plays. Davis used the Legislature to pull his chestnuts out of the fire. He began probes of various departments in an effort to prove that everything under the previous administration was wrong. He found nothing.

Then he used the Legislature to enact a measure to rip wide open all state departments, placing every employee of the state under the thumb of the chief executive. The legislative body awoke to the situation when too late. Fearing that the ripper bill would be repealed, the Governor adjourned the body, using a constitutional prerogative the first time in the history of Ohio.

Another motive lies in the direction of the Legislature. Under the circumstances, he is not entitled to any credit whatever for dismissing the Legislature. In view of the splendid failure the Governor has been, lacking in the elements of courage to use his influence to secure legislation promised in the party platform and his own "tump" declarations, Ohio might be better served perhaps if he would tender his own resignation and depart along with the solons.

The Pontoon pardon is still a stalling horse about the state house and a skeleton the Governor would like to shake off, but even frequent fishing trips fail to accomplish it.

Since the commission-manager form of government has been voted by the people of Lima, to go into full force and effect next January, there isn't a great deal of interest in the coming of candidates for places other than for members of the commission and there still remains nearly a month for aspirants for those places to make up their minds about it.

Since there are no nominations to be made for mayor, auditor, treasurer and members of council, about the only thing left to worry about is the members of the school board and as members of the school board are a candidate list in the various towns of the county, there still remains the petition opportunity. Where aspirants have not declared themselves, the law provides for the nomination of candidates by petition.

Facts and figures are floating out of Columbus, from the precincts of Governor Paul state highway department, which gives that particular part and parcel of state government anything but an inviting odor. In fact, the situation is such as to indicate that there is "something rotten in Denmark."

Demand has been made that the same legislative committee which was appointed to investigate the highway department as administered by the former commissioner, get into action again. The only thing the probers found was that there had been questionable methods employed by a Republican incumbent. The investigation came to a sudden end. But there is work for it now. Stories of the purchase of 2,000,000 gallons of tar by the state highway department at an increased price, for the resurfacing of roads, demands an inquiry.

All other materials have dropped in price and tar is generally supposed to be cheaper than asphalt, by two cents a gallon, but the price paid was 2.6 cents higher than the asphalt quotation. Road men are a unit in the claim that asphalt is the superior road material. Not only the policy of tar purchase to be condemned, but its purchase in such large quantities at such a high price, is apparently indefensible.

Hopes ran high for some time among Democrats of Ohio that former Governor Judson Harmon would submit to the use of his name as a candidate for chief executive of the state next year, but to all advances the famous Cincinnati only smiled, refusing to commit himself. Now he has gone to Europe, for the remainder of the summer. However, the "Harmon Democrats" of Ohio have no idea of giving up trying and will camp on the trail of "Uncle Jud" when he returns.

There isn't a great deal being said these days about the Governorship. Since Vic Donaher has acquired a coal mine in his home territory, over about Shepherd, he hasn't time to worry about politics, apparently. The disappointment of defeat hasn't altogether been eradicated from Vic's mind and it's doubtful if he'll care to make another try at it.

Congressman John L. Cable's press-agenting private secretary continues flooding the newspaper offices of John's congressional district, the 4th, with reflections of John L.'s activities, which for the most part, even in Republican offices, find their way into the capacious maw of the ever-ready waste basket.

Newspapers nowadays are made up of something other than the boosting of this or that candidate or office-holder. Press-agenting is old

HOUTZ FACES NEW CHARGES

Wapak Night Patrolman is Again Dismissed

MAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH
Tractor Injures Its Owner and a Visitor

WAPAKONETA (Special) — Charges against Night Patrolman Fred Houtz, specifying incompetency, inefficiency, insubordination and discourtesy to the public, preferred by safety director Adrian Saitz when Houtz was dismissed from the force, are to be pressed.

missed the charges, account not being sufficiently specific. Friday, charges were again filed, in more detailed form and another hearing is expected to be held soon. Houtz is accused of permitting violators of the law to escape, not making efforts to apprehend criminals, refusing to make reports to Chief of Police Ague and treating the Safety Director and a woman discourteously.

Funeral services for Fred Myers, New Hampshire man who committed suicide by drinking acid Thursday noon, were held from the New Hampshire M. E. church at 1 p. m. Saturday, in charge of Rev. Nunnester. Interment was made in Walnut Hill cemetery.

Bernard Fisher was seriously cut by broken glass when a truck of the Fisher Purity Dairy Co. collided with a sedan driven by A. Dodson, Waynesfield, on the St. Marys pike. Two other occupants of the truck, Dan Conkle and Forrest Lottridge, escaped uninjured. The accident occurred when the sedan passed another machine and couldn't gain the right side of the road in time to prevent a head-on crash.

Harry Doble, farmer near Gutman, was seriously injured when run over by a tractor. He started the engine when the gears were in motion. Both legs were injured. Everett Mertz, a visitor at the Doble farm, was caught in the mechanism and the ligaments of his arm torn.

The committee in charge of selling the old Home Milling Co. property has so far disposed of $805 worth of the material. Other buildings remain. The site will be used for a park and public playground.

CRUELTY CHARGED BY MRS. MCGRIFF

Former Nurse Answers Husband's Divorce Petition.

SAYS HE ABANDONED HER

Neglected, Abused and Cursed Her, She Alleges.

Allegations that Dr. DeWitt T. McGriff insisted, pleaded and begged Mrs. Helen Stone McGriff to marry him, are made in the answer and cross-petition of Mrs. McGriff, filed in common pleas court Saturday.

Mrs. McGriff says the physician tendered her his love and affection and pleaded with her to reciprocate, saying he would be to her a kind and loving husband.

In one of the lengthiest cross petitions filed in court here in years, Mrs. McGriff sets forth a long list of grievances charging her husband failed to carry out his promises. She accuses him of neglect and cruelty.

Mrs. McGriff says their trouble began when she informed the doctor she believed an heir was coming to them. From that time on, she says, he cursed and abused her, using vile, obscene and profane language.

CLAIMS ABANDONMENT

The petition says McGriff abandoned his home at Jameson-ave and State-st, without cause or justification, sending his wife's belongings to the home of her parents on E. North-st.

Mrs. McGriff says at various times and places her husband grabbed her by the throat and dragged her down the stairs, making threats of violence against her.

She charges his series of assaults reached a climax on December 3, when she was removed to St. Rita's hospital, where the child was born to them, which afterwards died. On November 13, previously he had abandoned her, she says. He was opposed to becoming the father of children, according to her petition.

Charges are also made that after leaving his home, he denied her credit of groceries, ordered the water and gas turned off, the electric current disconnected and took up the rugs and removed furniture and household articles, all with the idea of rendering life for her unbearable, the petition relates.

CLAIMS CRUELTY.

Mrs. McGriff states she was forced to look after the furnace and carry coal, despite her physical condition.

When called to the hospital at the instance of authorities there, Mrs. McGriff claims the doctor entered her room for the purpose of tantalization, made disrespectful and sneering remarks and was cruel and abusive.

Mrs. McGriff asserts she is broken in health and needs his assistance and help. The couple were married on August 12, last, nine months after the death of McGriff's first wife. She was formerly employed as a nurse.

McGriff, in his action for divorce, charged his wife mistreated both himself and his two children by a former marriage and that she was more interested in her women friends than in the welfare of the children.

McGRIFF'S CHARGES.

He alleged she refused to cook them their meals and instead sent them to the doctor's office and he was forced to take them to public eating houses. He also charged she threatened the children bodily injury and says that she called him vile names within two weeks after their marriage.

He asserted she told him and the children to get out in plain language and stated she was seeking all the money she could get from him. McGriff says he was in constant fear of her.

McGriff's two children are Andrew, 8 and William P. McGriff, 2 1/2 years. They are now in a boarding home, where McGriff is paying for their maintenance.

COUNTY TO SELL $24,000 BONDS

Must Raise Half of Funds for Waynesfield-rd.

County commissioners will enter the bond-selling business, with a view to disposing of more than $24,000 worth of securities, to be used in improving the Waynesfield-rd.

Commissioners have received an estimate from the state highway commission for improvement of a stretch of a mile of the Waynesfield-rd. This highway is to be constructed by the commissioners, with federal aid. This is one of the improvements not taken away in the $209,000 which the state highway department withdrew some two months ago.

Three different plans of roads are suggested by the state highway department. They range in price from $32,800 to $48,000.

Commissioners must therefore sell half of the amount of bonds for the highest type of road, or $24,000 worth of the securities. "If we had a larger amount of bonds to sell, we could dispose of them easier," Commissioner A. J. Gray said Saturday. "The small amounts of money concerned will make the sale of the bonds difficult, we realize." However, we are going to get the money for road improvement if there is any way to dispose of the bonds," Gray stated.

The three different types of road which the state highway commission suggests includes a concrete road; the second type is a concrete base with asphalt and the third is a water-bound base, with bituminous top.

LIMA RIFLE TEAMS IN CONTEST AT CAMP PERRY

Rifle teams from Company C, Second Ohio and Troop E, 107th regiment, left for a practice shoot at Camp Perry Saturday morning. They will return Wednesday.

There are 14 men in each team and one team from each of the local organizations. These teams will return to Camp Perry later this summer for the state tournament and will be matched against the best in the state.

Troop E, cavalry, will leave July 10 for their two weeks camp at Camp Perry.

FARM SOLD BY SHERIFF

Sale of 80 acres of land a mile and one-half southeast of Bluffton was made at public auction Saturday by Sheriff Baxter in the court action of Matilda Dempsey against Emil Kearn and others. The tract of land sold for $12,300. Former Judge William Klinger, as attorney, bid in the land for clients.

O. E. HOLDING UP MAIN-ST PAVING

City Officials Says New Rail Lack Prevents Contract.

Failure of the Ohio Electric company to purchase new steel rails for the portion of their line in N. Main-st is holding up letting of a contract for paving the Pennsylvania tracks south to Public Square. Service Director McClain, who has been negotiating with the company, is uncertain whether or not the street can be paved this summer.

The lines belonging to the Ohio Electric are in the hands of a receiver and have been ordered sold. Some time ago various lines of the company were ordered dissolved.

The company doesn't seem to be able to find either time or money to lay new tracks in Main-st and it will be inadvisable, city officials feel, to proceed with the paving until they have assurance that the company is ready to take care of their proposition. The company has just finished bonding the rails in this portion of the street.

Another matter which must be settled between the traction company and the city soon will be street car fares. Temporary increases in fare was granted the company a year ago, but the agreement is soon to expire. The old franchise has 14 years to run and calls for a five cent fare, or six rides for 25 cents when tickets are purchased.

The present rates, granted as a temporary relief measure, is seven cents a ride or nine tickets for 50 cents.

In view of the precarious state of the company's finances, it is a question whether the city can secure a restoration of the old five cent fare when the present rate grant expires.

Mayor Burkhardt will endeavor to arrange a conference with J. Harvey McClure soon, to discuss this and other matters.

COURT ORDERS NEW AUTO. FOR SHERIFF

Judge F. C. Becker Saturday granted an application of Sheriff Baxter for a new automobile for use when making trips over the county. The court ordered the expenditure of $1,375 to pay for the car.

The new automobile takes the place of a car which burned up after an explosion, while the trial of Ross Carbone, for blackmail, was in progress two months ago.

LABOR COUNCIL ENDORSES COMMISSION CANDIDATES

Announcement was made Saturday by the officers of the Lima Trades and Labor council that V. H. Effinger, electrician; W. S. Barfinger, electrician; M. D. Dickson, machinist; D. J. Smith, carpenter and Edwin Blank, attorney, have been endorsed by that body as candidates for election as members of the new city commission.

These names will be certified to the board of elections to be placed on the ticket at the proper time.

CLAXTON PRAISES LIMA SCHOOLS

U. S. Commissioner Addresses
Graduation Classes

LARGEST IN CITY'S HISTORY

Normal School to be Opened to Pupils From Country

The largest graduating class in the history of Lima schools was presented diplomas Friday night at Memorial Hall as the last event of their high school career. The total number of graduates, Central, South and Normal, is 196. This is an increase of 45 over last year, when 151 were graduated.

Of this year's class, 129 are from Central high, 48 from South High and 19 from the City Normal school. Last year there were 101 from Central, 34 from South and 16 from Normal.

United States Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton delivered the graduation address. By statistics he showed how school taxes are a minor thing compared with cigarettes and face powder and other luxuries. He gave some interesting facts concerning the meager salaries of teachers, compared with mailmen or the expense of keeping criminals in jail.

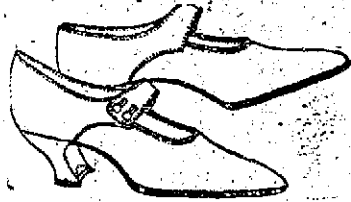

He praised Lima for the advance the city has made in its vocational schools and urged that these schools be increased in this country. He explained the advantage that Lima has in the 6-6 plan over the 8-4 plan.

Superintendent Collins, after disclosing the achievements of the class, presented Dr. Claxton. Rev. J. Allen Canby delivered the invocation and Rev. Kelly, the benediction. F. W. Mullenhour, president of the board of education, presented the diplomas. Principals Offenbauer and Roubush assisted him.

Statistics assembled from the graduating class showed that 101 will either attend college or normal school next fall. Of these 25 will attend the new city-county normal school, under the supervision of Miss Ilo Maddux. Formerly only city students were permitted to attend the Lima school, but next year the school will be open to residents of the county outside of Lima.

Tho the heat was oppressive, Memorial hall was filled with people long before the opening of the exercises. The graduates were seated on the stage, the boys in dark suits and the girls in white dresses. The lower floor of the hall was reserved for the parents and close friends of the graduates.

RICKETY WAGONS AND BONY NAGS REPLACED BY AUTOS FOR NOMADS

No longer is it the fashionable way for gypsies to travel in covered wagons of rickety build.

For them, as well as the average American, the old way has been discarded for the new.

Three loads of the little brown people passed thru Lima Friday and Saturday. They traveled in large Buick cars. The automobiles looked as if they had been no more than just out of the shop, their spick and span condition indicating they were good for the season's travel.

Their families and baggage was all loaded in the cars and they resembled tourists more than the ordinary gypsy band, of which the kids of years ago used to be scared "stiff." They stopped long enough in Lima to pick up a few nickels at telling fortunes, after which they started on their way to Elida. They stopped en route to Lima at Bluffton and Beaverdam, telling fortunes.

FORD TRANSFORMS HIS RAILROAD

D., T. & I. Now Earning More Than Expenses

WAS LOSING $300,000 MONTH

Employees Reduced But Wages
Are Not Cut

Henry Ford has transformed the Detroit Toledo and Ironton railroad from a road losing $300,000 a month to one that is operated at a profit. Last month, with revenues decreased somewhat over $100,000, the road earned more than operating expenses.

Ford states that he will run his railroad along factory lines and will put into effect those money saving systems that have made his automobile plants the envy of the world. Operation at the present time calls for the employment of only 1,300 men, compared with 2,700 last year. Greater efficiency is seen with the reduced man power and large amounts of freight are being constantly handled.

Wage reduction are not contemplated. A minimum wage of $6 a day will be put in force with a bonus to each man according to his service. This follows out the plan used in the factories at Detroit. The road will be operated six days a week only, as Ford believes that the men need one day a week for rest. Milk trains only will be run on the Sabbath.

MAKING IMPROVEMENT
Extensive improvements have been made on the roadbed, especially on the division north from Lima. This has been a trouble maker for many years and wrecks have been numerous. Now the track is being made secure with both slag and gravel and in a short time the heaviest trains can be accommodated.

It is understood also that Ford is contemplating changes in what has been termed "standardized" railroad equipment. He believes that there is much lost power due to extreme weight of engines and other apparatus. Tests are now being made, it is said, to determine just what can be done along this line.

Freight both in and out of the Ford factories is being routed over the D., T. & I. and the time required to make shipments to assembling plants has been cut by more than 50 per cent. All business possible is being routed over this line.

KIWANIANS TO DISCUSS CONVENTION PLANS AT TUESDAY LUNCHEON MEET

Convention plans for the state Kiwanis meeting to be held here in September will be discussed at the Tuesday luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Elks Home.

Members of the Club will present the various angles of the convention preparations and work will be started at once to make this one of the best meetings ever held in the state. Among the speakers are: Walter Jackson, who will outline the things which must be done by the local members to put the big state meet over.

Entertainment features will be on the program as usual, altho no special features have been prepared as yet.

main scrap, while the two party machines arrange to put the death sleep upon some sort of city manager proposition which the radical element is trying to sell the city.

Recapitulation of the appropriations made by the Eighty-Fourth General Assembly have knocked the economy pretensions higher than the famous kite of Mr. Cillroy. It was found upon careful inquiry that the sums appropriated were neatly tucked away into two dozen appropriations bills one dozen being regressive bills and the other dozen extras, but all providing for spending money just the same. The investigators are not sure even now that they have all expenditures authorized properly listed because other items may be buried in them. It is the first time in years upon years that this policy has been attempted. You may read the bills half a dozen times and then not be sure. They are not written in imitation of the laws of the Medes and Persians, which history tells us, meant what they said but like a Chinese puzzle book. Suffice it to say, pending attainment of further knowledge, that the total of all parent appropriations is nearly $65,000,000 and that this is exclusive of the money raised for the schools. The fact that this money is retained in the counties for distribution there and not distributed thru the State Treasury represents no economy.

The commonest form of solution to the taxation problem is the juggling of tax levies. That was the tactic of the Eighty-fourth. It is a world known fact that the world knows. When they are brought down to hard earth, tho, it is found that the levies aside from the strictly local ones, will be nearly five mills. Ten years ago this was a third of the maximum allowed anywhere in the state and half of the average taxing district levy. And the fellows who voted these imposts said that the Smith one per cent law is a failure! Study of the figures as a whole shows conclusively that the tax rates will average more than two per cent and that extreme rates of four per cent will not be uncommon. If there are not surprised people when these figures are published, all guesses will be missed. Imagine tax rates as high as interest rates. Just imagine it!

If they want revenue for the public treasury, however, what is the matter with putting the Ohio Supreme court under a tent and charging admission. It would be worth something to see it, if half goes on that is whispered about. Printed pages tell their own story. For instance, there was the "endorsement" given to a particular set of the code gotten out on the stationery of the court and bearing what seemed to be an official endorsement, not only from the individual judges but, apparently, from the court. And what a furore it caused, to be sure, with printed denials and demands for retractions. It was probably innocent enough that the letter was written but it appeared for less innocent in cold type while the fellow with the set of law books which had not been so fulsomely praised asked, "Where does the state get to step in between rival commercial organizations?" But the incident was only one of the same variety that has kept legislative, executive and judicial affairs in a turmoil ever since the first of the year. It was only one, it is true, but there will be others, even if certain persons, who will be unnamed here, have to be goaded into making the moves to produce the situations.

Understand, this old friend of the truth will have nothing to do with them, except perhaps to record them as becomes a faithful chronicler.

Little surprise was occasioned by the decision of the Ohio Supreme court this week in sustaining the Ake law forbidding the German language being taught in the public, private or parochial schools below the eighth grade. So far as may be seen, the decision was unanimous and the case will go on for final adjudication in Washington. It is to be noted that the sphere of regulation in respect to the schools and to the early life of future citizens is constantly expanding. There will soon be effective the Bing educational bill which really places the state in charge of the young all thru the adolescent period. When one considers the tremendous import of all this, the mere matter of language becomes very small. Still, the Ake law was a factor in Ohio affairs and its form was blamed by the very men who enacted it on others. They gave hope, too, that the courts would reject it, promises belied by failure to perform.

A generation lacking a year has been passed by James E. Bauman, in helping to build up a disease fighting machine. This week he celebrated 20 continuous years of service. The next time this celebration comes, Ohio ought to present him with a medal. His continued presence is a tribute not only to loyalty to duty, but also a tribute to the freedom from partisanship in the organization. When Jim Bauman began work, the state was spending $5,000 a year to prevent disease and no doubt there were fellows who thought that far and away the greatest extravagance of which they had ever heard. Now the state spends close to $400,000 and probably is still too parsimonious. Relatively less is spent on the economic consequences of sickness and no doubt a real casting up of the ledger would give the advantage all to the system that prevails now. Instead of the system that prevailed when he took hold. This, of course, is from the coldly financial side, to say nothing of the others.

Every once in a while or oftener, a legislative junket is formed to take a trip around the Ohio canals and see whether they are still there, whether they are small as had as ever and are as useless as ever. Until the past few years, some importance was attached to these trips but now no one pays any attention to them, save the fellows who are going at public expense. They do not even create a ripple on the surface of things. This being true, let it be noted that the

John H. Chester crew set out this week, the umpteenth in its line of investigators, sniffers and inspectors. Those who watched the hograzer wondered what good it can possibly do and let it go at that. They ought to be careful not to disturb the canal and Erie canal in western Ohio because it has a chance to become an artery of trade. The others have been so cut up by free donations to various interests that the rest might be given away with the exception of the lakes and resorts.

Seventeen tax levies, emergency, within and without limitations and submission of the constitutional poll tax to the people—what a record! That, however, is the manner in which the books figure up on the late demise by the hand of Governor Harry L. Davis—General Assembly. There are levies for this and levies for that, optional levies, compulsory levies, mandatory levies and permissive levies. All, all piled upon the backs of taxpayers until one might think that they need the protection of the game laws. No telling where the tax rates will go if this thing goes on at this rate. There was never so much complaint against tax imposts and never so many were imposed. That's what seems so strange to the average citizen. Still the answer to it all is that there were special demands which were pressed and no vigorous minority to resist. Many of the propositions are perhaps meritorious enough in themselves, but they cannot be paid for without straining the limits. A farmer member who was here this week, confided to this truthful recorder that the folks aren't saying much. Who can blame them?

MARCUS.

32 PER CENT MADE BY SHOE MEN

Profits of Manufacturers in 1919 Shown in U. S. Report.

WASHINGTON.—High prices of footwear which obtained during 1918 and were increased in 1919, resulted from "abnormal conditions of supply and demand, both economic and psychological, arising from the war," the federal trade commission Saturday reported to the house of representatives. The report was submitted in responses to a resolution.

"Incident to these conditions," the report added, "were large margins of profit taken by tanners, shoe manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers, whose large earnings were declared to be 'out of all proportion to the increase in their cost per unit.'"

The advance in the price of shoes finally was terminated by the so-called "buyers' strike" in the spring of 1920, according to the report.

"In any event," the report concluded, "the present conditions existing in these phases of industry, justify an expectation of still further declines in the quoted prices of leather and shoes."

The report claims large profits on the part of the tanners, shoe manufacturers and wholesalers and retailers in 1918 and 1919. Earnings of 361 reporting shoe manufacturers, representing 62 per cent of the 1919 production, averaged 16.2 per cent on their total investment, according to the commission's figures. "These large earnings of tanners and shoe manufacturers," the report says, "were primarily due to the fact that their selling prices increased out of all proportion to the increases in their costs of production."

Earnings of 32 typical shoe wholesalers and jobbers averaged about 22 per cent on the investment in 1918, and about 21 per cent in 1919. Earnings of 46 typical shoe retailers averaged about 23 per cent in 1918 and about 22 per cent in 1919. These earnings like those of the tanners and manufacturers, resulted from wide margins of profit taken on each shoe sold.

CENSUS OF COLORED POPULATION SHOWS 1,376 IN THIS CITY

Lima has a colored population of 1,376, according to a census completed Saturday by Fred P. Searles, 934 W. High-st.

In making the survey of the colored population, Searles listed only those who have resided in Lima for one year or more. Persons who have been here less than that period were not counted.

Colored people in the city are engaged in all classes of business, the report shows. There are physicians, mechanics, merchants, bricklayers, cooks, waiters, chauffeurs and many in other lines of endeavor. Many own their own homes and a majority possess a good education, received in the local schools.

Redleg Star Refuses To Heed Judge's Ruling

CINCINNATI—Heinie Groh, third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, on whose case Judge Landis Thursday made the unprecedented ruling of reinstating him providing he joins the Cincinnati club immediately and plays the balance of the season with Cincinnati, Saturday refused to abide by that decision.

After saying earlier in the day he would play whenever Pat Moran calls on him, Groh did not put on a uniform Saturday afternoon and after the game engaged in a heated conference with club officials.

At the end of the confab, Garry Herrmann refused to make a statement. Groh would barely answer questions put to him by newspapermen. Asked if he was going to play ball, he said:

"That's up to Judge Landis."

Asked what he meant by that, he said he was not going to accept a "one-way decision."

"What do you mean by that?" he was asked.

"I want a decision that is fair and square and not one-sided," he said. "The decision handed down by Judge Landis compels me to play with a club I don't want to perform with and for a salary that is not agreeable to me."

WANTS FULL PAY

That's all he would say, but those who have followed the case closely know Heinie wants the club to pay him in full for the season, instead of having his pay start Friday, when his suspension was lifted. In handing down his decision, Landis said no punishment would be inflicted upon Groh as he already had been punished sufficiently by the loss of his salary to date.

Before applying for reinstatement Groh signed a contract in which it says his pay shall be at the rate of $1,762.65 a month. An extra clause inserted in the contract says it is agreed by all parties his salary shall not start until he is reinstated.

He signed this contract after given a verbal promise by Herrmann he would not be traded when reinstated.

LANDIS QUESTIONS GROH

Before reinstating Groh, Landis asked him if he intended to live up to his contract he had signed. Groh replied that he did. Landis asked Herrmann the Cincinnati club's intentions regarding Groh and Herrmann replied the Reds intended to trade him where it would be to the best advantage of the Cincinnati club. Landis then decided Groh must remain with the Reds, making it impossible for Herrmann to carry out his promise.

Herrmann accepts the judge's decision without protest, but Groh apparently means to defy the commissioner. Due to the fact that Landis ruled Groh should not be paid for the time he was under suspension, Heinie has lost about $3,500 in salary. This is what hurts him and makes him defiant.

GEORGE CLEVELAND ALEXANDER

Some time ago it was rumored that Grover Alexander, premier hurler of the Chicago Cubs outfit was thru. His arm was shot, and he was slated for the bone yard, so the story. But Alex the Great, yesterday came thru with another victory when he downed the Braves. Alexander declares he is a long way from being thru, and will continue to hurl the old dot after many of the youngster flingers are earning a living in the bushes.

Brother Batch Wins Latonia Classic

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky.—Brother Batch, owned by G. T. Arnold, won the Latonia Derby here Saturday in rather easy fashion. Laying out of the early pace set by Behave Yourself, he came to the front after the field had traveled a mile and a quarter and drew away to win by three lengths from Behave Yourself, who was that far in front of Uncle Velo, only other starter. His time was 2:47 3-5. In winning the derby Brother Batch performed an iron horse stunt. It was his third start in as many days. He won a six-furlong race Friday and ran third in a six-furlong event Thursday. The stake was worth $14,625 to the winner.

MacK Garner rode the winner and the boy was highly complimented on his clever work. He did not become flustered when Uncle Velo dashed to the lead after the trio had covered the first mile, but waited until the final dash to make his run.

Behave Yourself, winner of the Kentucky derby, ran a game race, but the 131 pounds he was asked to shoulder was too much of a burden. Black Servant and Rangoon, others entered for the derby, were scratched.

Dorsey's Glad He's Racing Peter Coley

Four years ago, Bert Dorsey, the Findlay, O., turfman, paid $2500 for a three-year-old colt that behaved so badly he was the despair of trainers and stablemen.

But that naughty colt has steadied down as he grew older, but still Dorsey had planned to retire him from the active racing game for the present season.

However, he's changed his mind. And now he's glad he did. That nag came within a quarter second of the world trotting record for geldings in winning a three-heat race on a twice-around track.

Before the season's over he's expected to shatter the record. The trotter in question is Peter Coley and he traveled the miles at Berea in 2:09 1-2, 2:08 1-4 and 2:08 3-4 to beat Peter L., which kept right at his heels all three heats.

FIGHT AGAIN

Billy McCann's to tackle George Chaney again. This time it'll be in Baltimore. Chaney's home city wants to get a peek at the bird who could let Chaney hammer him for 12 rounds and live to tell the tale.

It's to be 15 rounds to a decision and the weight will be 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Business Club Loop Changes Playing Dates

A complete change of the playing schedule of the Lima Business Club league has been made and will become effective this week. The change was made at the recent meeting of the baseball commission, and affects all remaining games with the exception of three. The revision was attributed to teams playing each other too many days in succession.

This coming Tuesday, the Elks were scheduled to meet the Rotarians, but under the new schedule the Lions will battle with the Elks. Thursday the Kiwanians will meet Rotary instead of meeting the Lions as under the original schedule.

It was also decided to play the postponed game of the Elks and Kiwanians, July 28. That date is after the close of the playing season.

Following is the new schedule:

June 14—Elks vs. Lions.
June 16—Rotary vs. Kiwanis.
June 21—Kiwanis vs. Lions.
June 23—Elks vs. Rotary.
June 28—Rotary vs. Kiwanis.
June 30—Lions vs. Elks.
July 5—Elks vs. Kiwanis.
July 7—Lions vs. Rotary.
July 12—Elks vs. Lions.
July 14—Rotary vs. Kiwanis.
July 19—Elks vs. Rotary.
July 21—Lions vs. Kiwanis.
July 26—Elks vs. Lions.
July 28—Elks vs. Kiwanis.

GOOD GAMES PROMISED

Managers of the four teams in the loop promise exciting battles this week. When the Elks meet the Lions Tuesday fans are pretty sure to see a real contest. The Elks are confident that they have the best aggregation in the loop, and like all league leaders, should prove a dangerous team. Being out ahead of the remainder of the clubs gives any aggregation a bunch of confidence, and to this added more due to the fact that they have lost only one game.

On the other hand, the Lions are imbued with the old win spirit. At the club's meeting baseball was discussed, and members of the organization pledged their support despite the fact that the team is holding the remainder of the aggregations. This instilled confidence in the lowly monarch, and they expect to win either Tuesday, or give

GEORGES' TRICKS DO NOT WORRY CHAMPION

By JACK DEMPSEY

If all the stories I hear about Georges Carpenter and his wonderful trickery are even half true, I guess I'll be so interested in seeing him do 'em on July 2nd that I'm liable to forget all about the fight before me.

Goah, that bird must be trickier than Jim Corbett, Kid McCoy, Charlie Mitchell, Houdini and Doug Fairbanks—if what the boys slip to me is correct.

I'm hearing all about "leap frog" punches and "ground floor uppercuts" and "aeroplane wallopers" and "ghostly shifts" and things like that. I've never seen anything like that put on in any prize ring. I'll agree that Georges is a wonder of wonders if he can do 'em. And I'm certainly going to be a very interested party on July 2nd if he starts putting them on.

"USUALLY CHASES 'EM"

The best part of the news of those punches is that they all force Georges to leap into me with an attack. That would suit great. The greatest trouble I've always experienced in my battles is to get the other fellow to come to me. I usually have to seek 'em as it is when they're going away.

I hope that Carpenter has all those tricks in his little bag that the boys tell me about—and that he will assume the offensive. Then all I'll need to do is stand up there, wait for him to romp along and plug him with everything I've got. I won't ask Georges to come in very often; just a few times will, I hope, be enough to oblige me.

I'm greatly interested in the reported speed of the Frenchman. Some fellows tell me he's a whirlwind; others say he is fast but sometimes he doesn't get perfect balance. Speed doesn't count for much if one is off balance when shifting around.

CHAVES MORE SPEED

One of my chief aims in this training programme has been to speed it up more—and still more. I realize that the man who is the faster has a decided advantage. And I'm determined that Carpenter isn't going to have that sort of edge in our fight. Nature gave me a pair of legs that get me around rather suddenly, like and I'm trying to improve upon nature by training those legs to absolute perfection.

My jester came around today to wish me a heap of luck. He's Max Kaplan, of Long Branch, N. J. I discovered him one day on the beach there while I was training for Fred Fulton. He was sitting alone, playing a mouth organ. Without knowing who I was he obliged by playing all my favorite selections. Then I gave him a job as comedian, because Max can see the funny side in everything. If I had to take a beating Max could see something in it that would give me a laugh.

JESTER JOINED CIRCUS

Max was with me when I trained for Jess Willard in Toledo and he served as the giggle maker for the camp. Later when I went with the circus I took Max along. He was given a job of training geese and damned if he didn't get the geese to doing tricks for him in a week. And they followed him around like a dog would.

The same kid kept me in good humor for the Mike and Harman fights—and now he's here to try to tickle laughs out of me as I battle my way along toward tip-top shape for Georges Carpenter.

Altoona Team Should Put Up Game Fight Here Today

If advance upon a baseball team may be ruled upon then the struggle at Murphy's ball park Sunday afternoon between the Independents and the Altoona, Penn. team should fans for he was extremely popular here this season. Manager Halloran, by the hardest of efforts has booked the fast Pennsy team in here. Rapid independents teams' thruout this neck of the woods have been endeavoring to procure a date with the Altoona team, and open dates with that aggregation are pretty hard to find. It was necessary for Lima to outbid several other cities in northwestern Ohio for a chance to see the wares of the Pennsylvania team.

For the past four years the club coming here has been the representative team of Altoona. As such the aggregations has met and held its own against some of the strongest teams in the east.

The Altoona team, according to the advance dope has repeatedly staged games against teams of the shipbuilding and Bethlehem Steel companies.

WIN & OUT 10
The team has played 10 games this season against the fastest independent teams in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland. Of that number the Altoona team has captured eight games.

Efforts are being made by Manager Halloran, of the local, to get Costello, former centerfielder, in uniform for this afternoon's game. Costly is a visitor in the city, and while he has not made a definite answer has intimated that he will don the independent spangles if possible. Costly needs no introduction to Lima fans for he was extremely performer when he pastimed in the local garb. A sweet outgarden is he, kept out of the major only by a bad arm. Costly was slated for a chance with the Detroit team, having been highly recommended by George Leidy, ivory hunter. Just before Costello was to leave with Leidy, the scout was granted an opportunity to witness the youngster's pegging arm. That was all. Costly never went up. Otherwise he is as sweet a performer when he pastimed in the Wolf, who pleased Lima fans with

CINCINNATI REGISTERS FIRST SHUTOUT OF SEASON AGAINST DODGERS WHILE INDIANS EASILY DEFEAT McBRIDE'S CLAN

Champions Pound Out Victory Over Senators

WASHINGTON—Staging one of the well known batting sees, the Champion Indians swatted their way to a 7 to 3 victory over the Senators here Saturday afternoon. During the nine innings, the Indians swung upon the offerings of three Senator hurlers for 17 safeties which netted them their seven runs. Added base swats were plentiful, Elmer Smith, Sewell, Jamieson, Burns and Evans connecting with the ball and sending it far enough to enable them to take one extra base. Rice, Gardner and Coveleskie each procured triples.

While his co-workers, and himself, were pounding the apple to the four corners of the lot, Coveleskie pitched steadily, holding the Senators to seven safeties. Only one earned run was made off the Pole's delivery, two counters being registered on error by Wambagans and Burns.

Joey Sewell continues to clout the bulb at a merry clip, stepping into four swats in five times at bat. Wambagans was the only other Indian to get more than one safe blow. Miller and Gharrity, of the Senators, each succeeded in touching the offerings of the Pole for a brace of hits, but they were the only Griffins to do that trick.

UNIQUE PLAN

URBANA, Ill.—The University of Illinois, in raising $2,000,000 for a new stadium, has adopted a plan which will make it possible for every contributor to the fund to be seated at any athletic contest.

Each donor will be given an option on a seat, or on a number of seats, according to the size of his contribution, for a period of years. These seats will be at his disposal for an athletic event in the stadium until his option expires.

A student who subscribes the minimum amount, $50, receives an option on one seat for ten years, or two seats for five years. The preference is with the donor. A $100 student pledge reserves two seats for ten years, or four for five years.

HE SUITS 'EM

If there are any better catchers in the National League than Walter Schmidt of the Pirates, the fans haven't seen them yet and all the clubs have visited the town which George Gibson is running.

BOUT IS ON

CLEVELAND—Carl Trenaine and Jack Wolfe, local bantams, have been selected to fight the main go at Dunn Field later on this month. Both are Clevelanders.

SOLAR, LOCOS WIN IN INDUSTRY LOOP

The Solar and Locomotive teams were winners in Saturday's play in the Industrial league here. The Oilers trimmed the S. S. Welfare aggregation by a 14 to 3 score, while the Engine-builders registered a 10 to 1 victory over the Lake Erie team.

H. Buckmaster hurled the Solar team to victory, while Yohs received his offerings. Hites and Armentrout formed the Welfare battery.

Tommy Cunningham was the victorious pitcher in the Leco-Lake Erie game. McNamara caught him. Greenland worked for Lake Erie, while Gossart was behind the bat.

The league standing is:

CLUB W L Pct.
Solar 2 0 1.000
Lake Erie 1 1 .500
Locomotive 1 1 .500
South Side Welfare 0 2 .000

Heavy Stakes At Windsor Race Meet

WINDSOR, ONT.—More than $500,000 in stakes and purses will be distributed during the three weeks of racing that will open here July 12 and continue until August 6.

The races will open at the Windsor Jockey club, with a week at the track to be followed by a week at the Kenilworth and a week at the Devonshire Park oval.

The feature event of the summer meeting will be the Frontier handicap on opening day at the Jockey club track. The Frontier that will carry $10,000 in added money, is for three-year-olds and up at a mile and a furlong.

Other features are the Canadian handicap for three-year-olds and up, foaled in Canada, at a mile and a furlong with $5,000 added; the Provincial handicap for two-year-olds with $5,000 added at 5-12 furlongs and the Essex handicap for three-year-olds with $5,000 added at a mile and one-sixteenth.

Five stake events all handicaps of $5,000 value each will be run at the Kenilworth park meeting.

A condition stake for three-year-olds with $20,000 added is planned for the Devonshire meeting. Winners of some of the biggest events on the American turf are expected to enter in this event.

Oldfield To Drive In Uniontown Race

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—Barney Oldfield, veteran race driver, will place the pack on the first lap of the 225 mile Universal trophy race on the Uniontown Speedway June 18, although he will not be an active competitor in the contest. It was announced here Saturday.

Oldfield holds the competitive record on the local speedway. In his last race here in a match contest with Louis Chevrolet, he turned five laps of the track at an average of 105.2 miles. Clifford Ireland of Illinois, a member of the contest board of the American Automobile Association will act as judge in the Universal race, officials announced also.

Entry Blanks Mailed

CHICAGO—Entry blanks for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field Meet at Stagg Field, June 15 have been mailed to five hundred of the leading colleges and universities of the United States and fifty colleges already have informed the committee that they will have entries in the meet. The entries will not close until after all of the sectional meets have been held.

Vaughnsville Wins From Cloverdale

In a loosely played game in which errors were featured, the Vaughnsville team, under the management of D. N. Hinkle, of that town, is seeking games with fast independent teams in this neighborhood. Those teams desiring games are requested to communicate with Hinkle.

Ohio State Wins Dayton Dual Meet

DAYTON—Ohio State won the track and field meet here Saturday, by a score of 79 points with Notre Dame second with 30 points.

It is asserted that a new world's record was established in the 440-yard hurdle event, won by Desch of Notre Dame from Pittinger and Hill of Ohio State, time 52.5 seconds.

The three participated in the Pennsylvania relay event six weeks ago when the official time was 53.4-5 seconds.

The meet attracted enormous throngs, but the hurdle event was by far the feature of the afternoon.

Pirates 10-Phils 3

PITTSBURGH—Launching another of their terrific batting sprees, the league-leading Pirates garnered 16 safe swats off Hubbell, the Philly twirler, and smothered the Quakers 10 to 3 here Saturday. Every Pirate reached Hubbell for a hit, while Bigbee and Carey grabbed three each. The veteran Babe Adams after 12 years of major league service, pitched excellent ball and the visitors were at his mercy throughout the game. Score:

GEORGES IS PUNK GOLF PERFORMER

MANHASSET, N. Y.—George Carpenter lost the decision to Old Colonel Bogie in a hard-fought tussle over the Northampton golf course late Saturday.

The challenger went nine holes with his trainer, Gus Wilson, a dapper fellow-countryman by the name of Pierre Mallet, and two newspapermen.

After all the rest of them, Georges score was best.

Carpenter had lots of trouble until he got on the greens, but there he showed deadly accuracy and a judgment of distance that would work ill for the Jacques Dempsey if applied in the ring.

After the golf match, Georges set on the front porch of his training quarters and discussed all the newspaper articles he could find about him, then he went inside and commended with his selection of phonograph records.

Scottish Football Stars Tour Canada

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia—Arrival in Halifax of an all-star football team of sixteen of the best professional players in Scotland is regarded as a sporting event of international importance. The team is made up of individual football celebrities and will make a coast-to-coast tour of Canada, playing games in all the principal cities. At the conclusion of the tour they will play in four cities of the United States.

NEW ADA LEAGUE

Various departments of Ohio Northern University are organizing teams to be represented a new league which will be under the supervision of Mr. Katherman. It is now planned to play twilight ball in newly organized circuit.

"A Lifetime Motor"

Sleeve Valve Motor Improves With Use

More than 50,000 Americans now drive the Willys-Knight Car! Its wonderful motor will outlive any chassis built—100,000 miles finds the motor still young. Its vertical sleeves do away with cams, springs and tappets! Thousands of miles merely increase its smoothness and power. No valves to grind. Unless you know Willys-Knight you have no conception of the fine car satisfaction and economy you now can enjoy at the $300 reduction. You'll never want any other type of car.

because he has some time of his four-year term yet to serve. There was an intimation, however, that Mr. Miller soon may resign.

It is that event it can be depended upon that if Mr. Halley can so arrange the affairs of Harry M. Daugherty in Ohio, to which Mr. Halley has been devoted so faithfully and industriously, that the Ohio man will get the past.

Dr. Michael Haley, of Piqua, was given a severe scolding this week in the report of an examiner for United States Public Health Service as the result of an investigation brought about by Representative Cable.

The case concerned an ex-service man drawing full disability compensation from one bureau, but unable to obtain free hospitalization from the service.

Dr. Haley is charged, in the report, "with failure to do his full duty in not recommending such necessary care for this man when he knew the conditions and circumstances."

Representative Knight made an attack on the United States Shipping Board this week, charging it, on the floor of the House, with employing Englishmen abroad to represent American interests.

Senator Allen Fontenelle, of Ohio, made similar suggestions in the Senate earlier in the week when Senator William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, opened fire on the board.

The Ohio Anti-Saloon League has won again. It has put over its candidate for Commissioner of Prohibition in the person of Major Roy A. Haynes, of Hillsboro, O., who is unknown anywhere and everywhere.

Major Haynes defeated Newton H. Fairbanks, of Springfield, O., a staunch supporter of the President when he was emerging from the woods more than a year ago and who withdrew his candidacy, admittedly feeble, from the gubernatorial race last year to allow more room for Colonel Ralph D. Cole, Mr. Daugherty's choice.

Major Haynes had the endorsement of Senator Frank B. Willis, who approved his candidacy almost before he obtained his Senate seat. The major was early on the quest, it being learned this week that he started the ball rolling late last November.

EVENTS SOCIAL SCHEDULED FOR HALF FORTNIGHT

Card Party and Musical to be Given at Elks' Home Friday Night, for Hospital Benefit—Two Weddings of Interest are Events of the Week.

(By ROSEMARY CHRISTEN)

MUCH interest has been manifested in the card party and musical to be held at the Elks' Home, Friday, under the auspices of the Ways and Means committee of the Tuberculosis hospital, with Mrs. A. S. Bowers, president. A delightful musical program has been arranged by Mrs. N. H. Hiner and Mrs. Russell Bennett. Mrs. O. J. Roush, Mrs. Samuel Blattner and Mrs. O. E. Davis will be in charge of the cards, while Mrs. W. C. Morrison is general chairman. Entire proceeds will be used in promoting and further improving the work of the hospital.

Two weddings of interest, which will be solemnized Wednesday, will be those of Miss Ruthella Preble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Preble and Clarence Huffer, Elida. The marriage will take place at 11 o'clock at the Central Church of Christ, the Rev. J. Allen Canby officiating. Miss Betty Dugan will be maid of honor, Edgar Huffer, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man, while Mary Virginia May and Ernest Heil will be ring bearers. The marriage of Miss Ethel Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hardin Arnold, Hope, Arkansas, and Robert J. Davis, son of Mrs. Lena B. Davis, will also take place Wednesday at the First Methodist church in Hope.

For the pleasure of Miss Norah Mullady, Kenton, bride-elect of her son, Walter Wright, Springfield, Mrs. Frank George Wright will entertain with a 5 o'clock tea at the Elks' Home Wednesday.

Two affairs scheduled for Tuesday are the Tri Theta sorority dance and the military euchre party, to be given at the Shawnee Country club with Mr. and Mrs. John E. Galvin as host and hostess.

Thursday the annual reception honoring the graduating class of St. Rose high school will be held in the school auditorium, while on Friday the annual luncheon of the active members of the Woman's Music club will be enjoyed at the Shawnee Country club.

Pollyanna Class of Trinity M. E. Sunday School motored to McBeth Park Thursday afternoon where they enjoyed a wicker roast and picnic lunch with Mrs. Harry Thomas as chaperon.

Members enjoying the affair were Misses Marvel Boesel, G. Iona Price, Mary Harruff, Lenore Thomas, Roseanna Bennett, Mary Herah, Christine Baker, Katharine Scoles, Irma Wright and Marjorie Pierce.

Art Study club will hold its final meeting of the year Wednesday with Mrs. Harry Harper, Jr., W. High-st. Election of officers will take place.

The following program will be presented at the Allen-co W. C. T. U. Missionary Day exercises at the Infirmary, Sunday, June 13th. "America," Alstetter's band; devotionals, Mrs. Charles Falkerson; musical selection, band; "Why We Observe This Day," Mrs. Loretta Durbin, state superintendent of flower mission; male quartette, address, Rev. O. F. Boroff; duet, Miss Emma John and Miss Margaret Sawmiller, reminiscence of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary E. McHaffey and reading, "Sweet By and By," Miss Ruth Morgan.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Abbie Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Price, Charlevoix, Mich., to Charles E. Bayly, Cleveland, son of Mrs. Mary Bayly of this city was made at a 1 o'clock luncheon given by Mrs. Price, Saturday.

Miss Price has the guest of Mrs. Charles A. Hoyer, W. Market-st for several weeks, returning to her home several days ago.

Von Bora Circle will meet Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. M. L. Mayer, 530 W. Elm-st.

Mrs. Frank McClaine, W. Market-st is home from a two weeks' stay in Upper Sandusky.

LIMA GIRL BECOMES BRIDE OF NEWARK MAN

MRS. WOOLSON HARTZLER

SOCIAL WHIRL OF PAST WEEK IN RETROSPECT

Affairs in Honor of June Brides are Given—Junior Reception for the Class of 1921 of Central High School Held at Shawnee Country Club

SOCIAL functions, numerous and delightful, occupied the closing week. The June bride claimed attention and affairs in her honor were happily arranged.

One of the most attractive gatherings was the 5 o'clock tea given at the Hotel Norval, Saturday, in compliment to Miss Norah Mullady, Kenton, bride-elect of Walter Wright, Springfield, with Miss Freda Prosser and Miss Margaret Daley as hostesses.

One large table, at which were seated the honor guest, Mrs. T. Mullady, Kenton; Mrs. Frank Wright, Mrs. Emmett Curtin, Jr., Misses Kate and Jennie Mullady, Miss Elizabeth Brennan, Mrs. Ambrose Bishop, Mrs. Ortho McMillen, and the hostesses occupied the center of the dining room, while three smaller tables were provided. Each was graced in its center with a basket of lovely roses and sweet peas. Place cards were dainty, pink colonial dames, while nut baskets and other appointments were in pink.

The Garford girls enjoyed their annual picnic at McCullough's Lake, Thursday. The Girls' Glee club entertained with several selections and later dancing was enjoyed.

Those present included Misses Margaret Fisher, Irene Adler, Edna Watson, Bernice Guss, Mabel May, Lucille Wilhelm, Donna Sheeley, Blanche Beth, Ruth Wilcox, Irene Brown, Mary Quilman, Elizabeth Wisterman, Mary Curry, Rose Diamond, Florence Benroth, Thelma Bressler, Olive Dyson, Elizabeth Slusser, Mickey McClain, Phoebe Welker, Evelyn Leahy, Goldie Lockart, Elizabeth Greenslade, Leona Garber, Juanita Gerding, Ava Metzger, Marie Sweeney, Ruth Faudree, Marie Maxwell, Helen Scanlon, Jessie Crites, Dorothy Roberts, Irene Russell, Dorothy McBride, Margaret Flinn and Hazel White.

Members of the Mercy Circle of King's Daughters will hold their final meeting of the year with Miss Katherine Reilly, W. Market-st, Wednesday with Mrs. Charles East and Mrs. R. O. Bigley as assistant hostesses.

Mrs. Arthur G. Kasson and children returned to their home in Tip-ton after visiting with Mrs. Kasson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Finicle, S. Metcalf-st.

Coterie club will meet Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Clifford Stanley, 230 N. Scott-st.

Members of the Mentor club will enjoy a 1 o'clock picnic lunch at City Park Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Thomas Cooke, Mrs. Raymond Earl and Mrs. John James as hostesses.

Ladies' Aid society of Bethany Lutheran church will hold an ice cream social at the home of Mrs. George Bohn, 409 N. Elizabeth-st, Wednesday evening.

Week 17 Bridge club will meet Wednesday with Mrs. Miller Landick, W. Market-st.

JUNE—BRIDES—BLUEM'S; THREE SYNONYMS

June, the month of roses, the beauty month of the summer, brings to our attention the most admired, the most-adored of all brides,—the June Bride. The whole world bows in reverence at her feet as she pauses on the threshold of girlhood to womanhood, and it is a wonderful interest that is shown in the effort to make her happy and contented.

But is not all that justified? Is not the dream of every bride a home of harmony and beauty, and is not that her due?

Among those who serve and wish to serve her in the establishment of her new home is the House of Bluem. The quality which is a distinguishing feature in every article that is sold, the harmony which is the result of competent and experienced buyers,—all these combined make up a line which is sure to please the most exacting woman of refined tastes.

The greatest factor in choosing those finishing touches which are so necessary to the making of beautiful homes is harmony and color effect; and in recognition of this fact we offer a lamp, pillows, draperies, etc., to harmonize with every rug in this department. The workroom service in connection with the purchasing of furnishings insures that the greatest care will be taken, and the skill of the workmen insures the utmost beauty of the finished drapery or pillow.

The rugs carried are quality rugs of long standing, every make a well known one,—Chinese, Oriental, Wilton, Chenille, Body Brussels, Axminster, Tapestry, etc. The drapery materials are of equal reputed quality,—Kapock Silks, Diana Cloth, Repps, Amure, Halycon, Taffeta, Scotch Madras, Pongee, Tapestry, Swiss, Marquisette, and French and English cretonnes. These are only a few in the large line of rugs and draperies and the completeness of it insures a better selection.

The attainment of her dreams is one of the greatest happinesses of a bride's life. She cannot but be contented if the finishing touches for her home are purchased at Bluem's, for service, quality, harmony, etc., will prove the means for that end.

Women who have an exacting taste in dress shop at

because they always find something here that appeals to them

That most beautiful and important frock in a woman's life, her wedding gown. Is it not necessary that it be made of the finest materials obtainable, and in the most becoming style? Years after it has been worn it will be brought out and shown to her daughter, or grand daughter, and perhaps even her great grand daughter will see and admire it. And thus her wedding gown is an inspiration.

For the bridal gown this season we have a very complete selection. A few of the materials are Pussy Willow, brocaded satin, white Panné satin, Lambskin crepe, satin Francais, and for trimming we have tridescent beading, gorgeous nets and flouncings of net and lace, and the sheerest organdy in plain materials, flouncings and bandings. She will indeed be a beautiful bride who is dressed in these materials from the Bluem line.

And what woman does not dream of her trousseau as a girl and plan it eagerly when she becomes engaged.

We have gingham for her mornings, organdy and voiles for her afternoons, and taffeta silks and georgettes for evenings. For sport wear, flannel and silks in the newest shades and designs.

And that most intimate and dainty of all her apparel,—her lingerie. Slips of Francais satin, camisoles of satin and lace, and combinations of radium and satin in tailored and fancy effects. These are ready to wear, and some are handmade. For the bride who wishes to make her own lingerie we have a fine line of materials from which she may make her selection,—Radium, Crepe-de-Chine, Italian Silk, Crepe Meteor, and Corean Silk. Her hose may be of Italian Silk, or elaborately embroidered, with lace inserts, clock, drop stitch, and other patterns.

And there is an unending list of gifts for her. Lamps for her boudoir, hand painted ribbon vanity novelties that will delight her, and complete sets of standard patterns of ivory.

The bride of moderate tastes will find that she can be served just as satisfactorily as the bride of more extravagant tastes. It is our sincere desire to aid the bride of this month and extend our invitation to come in and look over our selections.

MISS CHRISTEN'S RESUME OF THE WEEK'S ACTIVITIES

The College Women's tea given Tuesday at the Shawnee Country club was delightful in all its appointments. Exquisite garden flowers were provided by the president, Miss Helen Newman, assisted by her arrangement committee, Mrs. John A. Harrison, chairman; Miss Catherine Weadock and Mrs. Kent W. Hughes. The long table seating 52 and the spacious windows which opened upon the green were transformed into a real bower of beauty. Clever little place cards formed a green and gold border around the table. Each leaf of green card bore a small sheaf of natural wheat, bound with bows of gold cloth. In attendance were several out of town guests including Mrs. De Grief, guest of Mrs. Frank Downing, Mrs. I. T. Moore, Indianapolis, guest of Mrs. Grace Enck, and Miss Abbie Price, who visited Mrs. Charles A. Hoyer during the past two weeks.

During the annual business meeting which followed the splendid repast, Miss Newman, the outgoing president, in a short, graceful address gave over her office to Mrs. John W. Roby, who has been recently elected president for the coming year. Mrs. Roby accepted the chair in her usual charming manner, calling upon the newly elected vice president, Mrs. Harry Moulton, for a few words of co-operation. Election of officers had taken place at a previous meeting and all installed at this meeting. Other officers are Mrs. Bonita Jameson, secretary; Miss Stella Pennell, treasurer; and Miss Helen Longworth, corresponding secretary.

Woman's Missionary society of Trinity M. E. church will meet Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the church with Mrs. J. O. Moore, Mrs. Charles Black, Mrs. Henry Blosser, Mrs. J. Bowdye and Mrs. G. S. Enck as hostesses. Devotions will be in charge of Mrs. Walter Landis; lesson on "A Mountain Land" will be in charge of Mrs. M. D. Owen. Mrs. J. M. Longcoy will relate some interesting experiences during the time she taught in a mountain school. Miss Christine Baker will favor with a vocal solo. Mrs. Beecher Moke will talk on "The Leper Work." Report of the year's work will be given. Mrs. Joe Davidson will follow with a vocal solo. Installation of officers will take place after which a social hour, in charge of Mrs. R. L. Evans and committee will be enjoyed.

The Gamma Beta Sorority was delightfully entertained Friday evening by Miss Myrtle Haaga, at her home on North Cole-st. Music and dancing was enjoyed through the evening and in a clever contest, Miss Winifred Berryman was successful. At a late hour the hostesses, assisted by Miss Gladys Talbot, served a delightful lunch. Members present were: The Misses Anna Lesauere, Doris Ballinger, Rowen Wetherill, Erna Ferguson, Rhea Dixon, Ruth Barni, Elizabeth Wistman, Opal Dixon, Vera Rousculp, Bessie Reese, Pauline Kossler, Lillie Brower, Mrs. Odella Dotie and the hostess, Miss Gladys Talbot was the only guest. The next meeting of the sorority will be with Mrs. Odella Dotie at 832 Weadock-ave.

Miss Dorothy Enid Laughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Laughlin, S. Pine-st., will leave Saturday for a visit to New York and other eastern cities, accompanied by her uncle, the Rev. E. H. McCord. Miss Laughlin is a member of the graduating class of South high school and her sojourn east is a gift from her uncle who is pastor of the First Methodist church, Plainfield, N. J. Miss Laughlin expects to visit her brother Guy J. Laughlin, rector of the U. S. C. O. C. in the League Island Navy Yards, Philadelphia. She will return to this city about July 1st.

Missionary society of Olivet Presbyterian church will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. with Mrs. Charles Schrader, 1028 W. High-st., Mrs. Clint Hoyer will be leader and the subject will be "Our Island Possessions." Mrs. William Wilson who was a delegate to the recent convention at Wiona Lake will give a report of the meeting. Special music will be furnished and lunch will be served by the Intermediate Christian Endeavor society. All the men of the church are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Helen Miller, who taught in the public schools during the past year, residing with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Hall, N. Collet-st. left Saturday for her home in Delaware, Ohio, where she will visit with her parents during the summer months.

Intermediate Christian Endeavor society of Olivet Presbyterian church will hold an ice cream social Wednesday evening on the Charles Schrader lawn, 1028 W. High-st. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Misses Emma Wright and Mary Harratt will leave Monday for Houghton Lake, Mich., where they will visit during the summer months with Miss Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright.

Mrs. John Williams was hostess to the members of the Koe-Mar club at her home on Dingledine-ave Thursday. Election of officers took place after which a social hour was enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Ross Sprague and two children, Hazel-ave, and Miss Jennie Coolahan, Toledo, left Saturday for Florence, Kansas, where they will visit Mrs. Sprague's sister.

Ft. Amanda Encampment No. 202, I. O. O. F., will hold election of officers and work in Royal Purple degrees, Monday night. Refreshments, Joel Spyker, C. P.

ADA TO CELEBRATE
ADA—An old-fashioned 4th of July celebration is promised here by Mayor Harry Sonesley. Fireworks will be supplied by funds created by popular subscription.

Mrs. E. C. Ring was the recipient of a very pleasant surprise Wednesday evening when her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. DeLong entertained with a pretty gathering at their home on Rice-ave, in honor of her birthday anniversary. The evening was enjoyed in music, an interesting contest in which Mrs. F. J. Parson and Mrs. James Gamble were successful, and other diversions. At a late hour a dainty two-course luncheon was served at small tables effectively arranged on the lawn. Entertaining each was a basket of flowers and a mellow light was provided by rose and white candles. Dainty nut baskets were presented as favors and all appointments were in rose and white. The honor guest received many pretty gifts.

Those present included Mrs. James Gamble, Mrs. Henry Blosser, Mrs. Thomas Kendrick, Miss Anna Kendrick, Mrs. Fred Brobeck, Mrs. J. Haddix, Mrs. F. J. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. George Groves, Dr. and Mrs. J. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowler, Mrs. William Linderman, Mrs. M. E. Quigley, Mrs. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. DeLong, Miss Ollie DeLong, Mr. and Mrs. Reniger, Mrs. Overholtz, Mrs. C. Crossley, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ring, Mr. and Mrs. William Ring, Misses Margjorie and Princess Ring, Melvin Ring, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ring and the host and hostess.

Mrs. Harry Macdonald will present her pupils in piano recital Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at her home, 554 W. Spring-st. Taking part are: Rebecca Andrews, Ruth Watt, Margaret Watt, Dorothy Hansbottom, Olen Hansbottom, Frances Grege, Jane Marie Greene, Margaret Carpenter, Hildegarde Thompson, Helen Altschul, Marjorie Tolford, Furman Miller, Kenneth Hutchinson, Janet Sealts, Gibson Dilline, Dorothy Holm, Dorothy Wood, Mildred Whitney, Mary Baxter, Elizabeth Baxter, Thomas Ewing, Katherine Holland, Alice Thompson, Bernice Lindesmith, Elizabeth Reid, Margaret Freeman, Mrs. Bertha Sellers, Lullala Steiner, Evelyn Steinmetz, Inez Bernstein, Lenore Sprague, Bernice Rosenbaum, Ruth Broadwick, Louis Zuremshly, Helen Schermerhorn, Grace Stratton, Janet Willower, Alice Rossteld, Aletha Lucwik, Morris Hughes, John Macdonald, James Poling and George Macdonald.

Miss Mary Parmenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parmenter will return Tuesday to this city. Miss Parmenter received her M. A. degree in mathematics at Columbia University this year and enroute to her home visited in Boston and Wellesley, Mass., and has been the guest of Congressman and Mrs. John L. Cable for the past week.

Thursday evening, the Home Economic girls of South high school will give a party at the City Park. Each girl had prepared delicious food for the occasion and knew how to serve it most appetizingly.

The Scott's Crossing picnic which was planned for the boys and girls of the Senior class of South high school Wednesday evening was called off and a picnic dinner at McCullough's Lake substituted. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed in boating.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Collins and daughter Flora Mary are home from a six months' sojourn in Florida. Leland Collins also returned the latter part of the week from the south where he attended the John B. Stetson university at Le Land, Florida.

Mrs. Irene Mills Jackson of the American Red Cross Home Service division leave June 21st for Milwaukee, Wis., to attend the National Convention of Social Service Workers which will be held there for one week with speakers of note from all the various lines of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Harter, S. Elizabeth-st., with their children, Morris and Elizabeth will motor to Wooster this week to attend the annual commencement at the College when Allen Harter is to graduate, having majored in history.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thew and family, corner Lakewood-ave and Washington-st., leave next week for northern Michigan, going by motor. They have taken a cottage and will probably remain for the summer.

Women's Board of Managers of the City hospital will meet Wednesday at 9 a. m. at the City hospital. Primrose club will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Porter Ramsey, 854 N. Main-st.

All who are interested are cordially invited to attend and to come prepared to lend a hand in sewing for some of Lima's needy little folks.

Wednesday was another rare day in June in the neighboring town of Bluffton, when the Travel Class honored one of its members, Mrs. Eliza McPeak, who left Saturday for Berkeley, Cal. Mrs. McPeak resided in Bluffton for 40 years. She is the mother of Mrs. R. E. Hughson, who is well known in Red Cross and church circles in this city. Another special guest was Mrs. Peak's daughter, Miss Edith, who has during several years been the Dean of Women at Bluffton College. She returns to Berkeley University to resume her studies. She also will be greatly missed in Bluffton and vicinity. As a parting gift the club bestowed upon Mrs. McPeak one of the late books. In attendance from Lima were Mrs. Julius Wise, Mrs. Theodore Scheid, Mrs. Lush M. Butler from Wapakoneta; Mrs. Charles Warden, Mrs. Malcome Baxter and Mrs. Kennel, Kenton.

Summer time flowers reigned indoors and out where early tea was served by the guests and farewells said to the honor guests.

Final meeting of the term of the Armistice club was celebrated in the form of a banquet at the home of Mrs. M. D. Owen, 5 Elm-st. Following the banquet, the hours were enjoyed socially. All but three members were in attendance.

Are Weak Nerves and Thin Blood Making a Failure Out of You?

Iron starvation of the blood weakens the will power, robs you of your bodily and mental vigor and often keeps you from making the money and success you should.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When your blood is thin, pale and watery it loses its power to change food into living tissue, and NOTHING YOU EAT DOES YOU THE PROPER AMOUNT OF GOOD—you don't get the full strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, nervous, irritable and easily upset.

Also YOUR BRAIN BECOMES DULL AND HEAVY, your memory poor; your will power weakened; you can't think right and you are no match for the fellow with a keen active powerful mind.

It's the "man of blood and iron"—THE STRONG, FORCEFUL, VIGOROUS FELLOWS that make the money and become the great captains of industry.

When, as a result of iron starvation, you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong; or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but consult your family physician and have him take a blood count of your red blood corpuscles. If they are low, your doctor will tell you by adding plenty of spinach, carrots, baked apples or other iron-containing fruits and vegetables to your daily food and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron with them for a while and see how much your condition improves.

Thousands of people have surprised by increased their strength, energy and endurance in two weeks time by this simple expedient. But in making this test be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which is usually taken. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of NUXATED IRON. Beware of substitutes; look for the letters "N. I." on every bottle. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturer if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists—Adv.

MR. BILLINGS SPENDS HIS DIME

(By DANA BURNETT.)

The general drew back, tugging at something in his coat pocket. Colonel Gomez, for his part, reached down into his boot, whipped out a knife as large and sinister as the one in Mr. Billings' hand and with a movement swift as lightning presented it at our hero's heart.

The latter stood absolutely apace with astonishment.

"What have I done?"

"The knife, senator!" admonished Excelencia softly but in a grim voice. "You drew the knife!"

"Oh, that!" cried Mr. Billings. "Yes, yes, I see! Ha-ha! You thought that I was going to—But why should I? Why? Ha-ha! A good joke! I only meant to give it back to Manuel."

"Senator Beelings," said General Blanco, "I apologize for the temperament of my race. We are of a nervous temperament, senator. Manuel! Come get your knife. And now, Senator Beelings, let us talk of matters more serious."

"Yes," hissed Starbock. "There are some questions that we wish to ask you, senator."

"Well," said Mr. Billings, "ask them!"

Starbock spoke.

"You are, senator, a person in the employ of General Babilio Blanco?"

"I am the resident agent of the proposed Pan-American Tobacco Company," said Mr. Billings with dignity, "at a salary of ten thousand dollars a year." He looked for confirmation toward Excelencia, who nodded.

"So," continued Starbock. "And you are aware of the conditions under which General Blanco returns to this country?"

"General Blanco has told me everything," Starbock started, then recovered his composure.

"You know that the general is the enemy of the party now in power?"

"You know that he is the enemy of the Jaurez government?"

Mr. Billings smiled and waved his hand.

"Yes," he said. "At least—"

"One moment, senator! You know this thing, and yet, knowing it, you deliberately go to live in the house of Dona Susan Dale, who is President Jaurez's guardian angel."

"Well, what of that?"

"What of that? What of that, senator? You ask me what of that?"

"Excuse me, Senator Beelings," interrupted Excelencia. "It is this that disturbs us, Senator Beelings: We are engaged in forming a company, the nature of which, until our plans are ripe, it is necessary to keep secret. Especially do we wish to keep our plans a secret from the Jaurez government—a question of politics, but very important, you understand."

"Certainly!" said Mr. Billings. "You senator, are a member of our company. Suddenly we discover that you are living at the home of a lady who is, as a matter of fact, the brains of the Jaurez government."

"Yes," said Mr. Billings in an off-hand tone. "President Jaurez himself admitted that."

"What?" cried Excelencia. "You have met Jaurez?"

"I had breakfast with him this morning," replied our hero.

There was a moment of intense silence. Then Starbock gasped, in a harsh whisper: "So!"

Colonel Gomez, sensing an accusation, took his cigar out of his mouth and said in his native tongue: "If the round-faced senator is a spy, permit me, in the name of God, to put my knife into his bowels."

"But I do not think that he is a spy!"

"Senator Beelings," said Excelencia, "tell us, explain to us, why you are living in the house of Dona Susan."

Mr. Billings looked at the speaker and smiled a second time.

"General Blanco," said he gravely, "when I accepted the resident agency for the proposed Pan-American Tobacco Company, at a salary of ten thousand dollars a year, I asked you for my instructions. You told me, if you remember to study the ground, to become acquainted with the friends of the company. Well, I leave it to you. Could I have done more to make friends with the most influential persons in the country?"

"You mean that you have been merely following instructions?" demanded Excelencia.

"Exactly!" said Mr. Billings.

"Senator," interposed the general, "tell me: are you on good terms with Dona Susan?"

"Excellent — if I may say so!"

"And with Jaurez?"

"Yes, I think so. Yes, to be sure! And I must say that I have found him a very pleasant sort."

General Blanco's eyes flashed suddenly. He smote the table with his fist.

"Pleasant! Ah, the hypocrite! The usurper! The tyrant! The infamous office-snatcher!"

"Excelencia, you forget yourself!" snapped Starbock.

"And you are wrong!" proclaimed Mr. Billings with the nobility that was ingrained in his very nature. "You are wrong, general! President Jaurez may be a usurper, but he is not a hypocrite. Nor do I believe that he is a tyrant. No, he is a democrat at heart, General Blanco! I feel sure of it. Why, only this morning he begged Dona Susan to let him ride in her carriage tomorrow night — in the festival, you know — simply to escape the dignities of his office."

"What?" exclaimed the general sharply.

Starbock half rose from his chair. His small, beady eyes glittered strangely.

"Of course," said Mr. Billings inwardly pleased that his statement had created such an effect. "I don't suppose the president would want it known."

"Of course not, of course not!" agreed Starbock, almost crowning the words. "It will be a secret with us, eh? So—so! Such a lot of secrets!"

General Blanco rose and said: "Senator Beelings, we are much indebted to you for your courtesy in keeping this appointment. You have reassured us upon every point. We are more than ever convinced of your inno— ha! of your honesty, your discretion, your loyalty to the affairs of the soon-to-be-formed Pan-American Tobacco Company. Continue, senator, to make friends among the highest. Already you have done us an estimable service." Here General Blanco drew out of his pocket his familiar large purse and took from it a substantial budget of bills. "Senator," he said cordially, "permit me to pay you the rest of your first year's salary. Five thousand dollars. Is it not, senator? Yes, that is correct! Manuel, stand away from the door. And now, senator, until we meet again."

HOT WEATHER OFFERINGS FOR FILM FANS OF LIMA DURING THE WEEK

FOR FOUR
THEATRESDeMille's "Forbidden Fruit" Here
For Five Day Showing on Silver SheetPriscilla Dean, William Hart, Nazimova, Alice Brady and Other Stars Appear

NOT for several weeks have theatre managers announced as noteworthy a program of film attractions as the one scheduled to appear during the forthcoming week. Each of the four theatres remaining open have arranged a week's list of silver sheet features that embrace the great and the near-great, with several popular feminine stars at their best.

Cecil B. DeMille's "Forbidden Fruit" which opens a five-day engagement today at the Faurot, promises to be one of the season's most talked-of films. In it the beautiful Agnes Ayres and a host of Paramount players are seen to advantage. The settings and atmosphere are up to the usual standard of DeMille's gorgeousness.

"Reputation" is the interesting title of Priscilla Dean's new starring vehicle, which opens a four-day run at the Lyric. Miss Dean is seen in a dual role, each characterization of widely different personality. Her work is said to be remarkable. The week-end attraction at the Lyric is scheduled to be "Wolves of the North," a tale of the frozen north, with Eva Novak in the role of the blonde "Esquimo."

William S. Hart will appear at the Faurot on Friday and Saturday in "The Testing Block." This is Mr. Hart's first appearance here for several months and fans will not be disappointed in his present story. It has action, thrills and Hart at his best.

The incomparable Nazimova is the feature de luxe today at the Sigma, appearing in "Billions." In this present story, Nazimova is seen as a Russian Princess, a role she has never before attempted. In addition to "Billions," the Sigma offers a screamingly funny comedy in "The Bakery," with Larry Semon.

William Russell, Fox star, is the week-end attraction at the Sigma, his coming feature to be "Bare Knuckles."

Four prominent film stars are featured in the Majestic's weekly list of attractions. Alice Brady is seen today in "The New York Idea" while on Tuesday comes beautiful Enid Bennett in "What Every Woman Learns." Mabel Normand and Pearl White occupy the last few days of the week at the Majestic.

The Lyric's Pictures

THE dynamic personality of Priscilla Dean, Universal Star, was never better portrayed than in her latest release "Reputation" which opens a four-day run today at the Lyric. In fact, Miss Dean is one of the few screen actresses who could ably portray the dual role required in the present vehicle. Her work as Laura Figlan, renowned actress' daughter, is remarkable, from every point of view.

Based on a magazine story by Edwin Levine, entitled "False Colors" and adapted to the screen by Lucien Hubbard, we have in "Reputation" an example of the highest form of emotional drama.

The story is unique. A girl deserts her husband and child to go on the stage. She goes to Europe and there becomes the most talked-of actress on the continent. Back in America, her child grows to beautiful womanhood, and also seeks fame on the stage. Circumstances draw them together and make them the principal figures in a tense and thrilling drama.

A competent supporting cast has been secured to play opposite Miss Dean, including Niles Welch, Harry Carter, William Welsh and many others.

Technically, "Reputation" is an achievement. It has been edited and titled in a manner that is fresh and new. Its photography and scene effects are flawless. There are scenes of rural life, the mansions of the wealthy, the Limehouse district of London and the action covers every phase of life from simple, peaceful domesticity to the hurried pace and alluring magnificence of the social whirl. Accompanying the feature film, a new two-reel comedy and late News reel will be shown.

Opening on Thursday is "Wolves of the North" a drama of the snow-covered regions, with Eva Novak in the leading role.

The Faurot's Pictures

A new Cecil B. DeMille Photoplay invariably arouses great interest among those who have seen his previous efforts and when his latest Paramount super-special, "Forbidden Fruit" opens at the Faurot this afternoon for a five-day engagement, his admirers are promised a new solution to the ever present matrimonial triangle, set in a frame of amazing splendor and acted by a cast that you will agree is entitled to be classed as "all-star."

It is probably this cast that will serve as the magnet to draw you to "Forbidden Fruit," in spite of the admitted fact that it is the most magnificently staged of any of the DeMille productions. With Agnes Ayres, Theodore Roberts, Clarence Burton, Kathryn Williams, Forrest Stanley, Shannon Day, Bertram Johns and Julia Fay assembled in one cast picturegoers may well expect a treat, for they represent the aristocracy of screen artists.

As to the spectacular feature of the play, the leading one is probably that showing the Cinderella Ball which is played in a solid plate glass set approximately 150 feet square. Credit for this idea and the costumes go to Theodore Kosloff, who coached the dancers and served as technical director. The story calls for an entire household, including drawing room, library, reception hall, dining room and two lavish bedrooms. Of these one is perhaps the most exotically beautiful thing of its kind ever attempted on the screen. Exquisite gowns, including a famous ermine and sable negligee are worn by Miss Ayres. All of the feminine principals wear striking clothes and Miss Shannon Day are particularly fortunate in this respect. Beautifully colored art titles are shown. They are similar to those seen in "Something to Think About," but more highly perfected.

"Forbidden Fruit" will surely meet with the same enthusiastic reception in Lima that it did in New York, where it packed the big Rivoli theater for weeks. Notwithstanding the expense connected with its presentation here the management of the Faurot announces that there will be no increase over its regular scale of prices.

William S. Hart is not the only star of "The Testing Block," which comes to the Faurot next Friday and Saturday, but he wrote the story and supervised the production. Thus you will see the famous actor in a picture that must be his idea of what the public wants. It is laid in the heart of the California Sierras amid the giant redwoods. It consists of six reels of concentrated rapid-fire, two fisted action, tempered by the soft mellow beauty of romance. Combining in its dramatic situations the humor and heartaches of life with the breath-taking thrills of men's deeds in the early gold rush days the sweep of the drama is like an avalanche in its expression of human emotion. Rough riding, rodeos and ranches, a roving theatrical troupe, Hart's famous pinto pony and a strong supporting cast headed by Eva Novak are outstanding features of this new picture, in which Hart registers as an uncommonly resourceful and impressive hero.

ial two-reel comedy, "The Bakery" with Larry Semon, accompanies the feature film.

In "Billions" Nazimova will be seen in a role that is totally different from anything she has hitherto done, either for the screen or the stage. It reveals a new Nazimova, who is already known the world over as "the star of a thousand moods."

As may be surmised, the plot of "Billions" revolves around people of wealth and high position. Nazimova's role is that of a Russian Princess, who is widowed when the Bolshevik blows her titled husband to atoms with a bomb. She takes up a life in New York in the Greenwich Village quarter, where she falls in love with a poet whom she has never met, altho her soul responds to his beautiful verses. One day the poet is suddenly lifted from the obscurity of his Village studio into influence thru the death of a rich uncle. The Princess, meanwhile has become wealthy thru the death of her husband, and the two meet at a fashionable California hotel. They fall in love, but some designing blackmailers nearly spoil their romance, which, however, turns out satisfactorily.

Nazimova herself designed many of the exceptionally beautiful settings. Her husband, Mr. Charles Bryant, plays the leading masculine role. The play first appeared on the French stage under another name, but its adaptation for Nazimova's use contains all the dramatic appeal and forceful story which made it famous.

"The Bakery" which is Larry Semon's newest comedy, is prominent on today's program. Mr. Semon has turned out several mighty fine comedies, but in "The Bakery" he is said to excel. The engagement is for four days only.

The Lambs Give Single Performance Of Their Public Gambol In New York

Adors' Fidelity League Gives Benefit With Fine Success

Rialto Features are Reviewed by an Observing Critic

(BY FREDERICK F. SCHRADER)
NEW YORK — (Special) — At the Hippodrome, Sunday evening, the Lambs gave a single performance of their public gambol. The program included "Will You Remember Me," a sketch by Glen MacDonough; "The Tale of a Lamb," written by Victor Herbert for the occasion; a "Camille" travesty; "The Composers of America," and a revival of the classic "Nick of the Woods."

Miss Ethel Barrymore was the guest of honor and after an introductory speech of some length and some sentiment mixed with wit and humor, by De Wolf Hopper, was revealed in a box. She had taken the box to court seclusion and to see and not to be seen; but so cordial was the applause of the audience that she had to rise and acknowledge the warm reception which Hopper had prepared for her when he described her loyal work for the profession.

Victor Herbert's contribution showed the exegesis of a club member from his earliest lambship. To his last with music, which he himself conducted, incidental to which he gave the audience a treat in the form of a potpourri of some of his popular numbers, from selections from "Babes in Toyland" to "Kiss Me Again."

"Will You Remember Me?" showed a succession of scenes from life in New York. A number which kept the audience in hysterics of laughter was supplied by Leon Errol in an elaborate sketch with an elaborate exhibition of dancing as a New Year's reveler. Fred Stone, who has recovered the use of his paralyzed ankle, showed his marvelous virtuosity in the handling of the whip, the lariat and pistol. These were the outstanding features of an unusually lively program.

Meanwhile the Actors' Fidelity League, the rival organization of the actors' equity association, was giving a benefit at the New Amsterdam Theater which netted $18,400 to the association's fund, which is to be devoted to the building of a club house. The outstanding dramatic features of the benefit were the tense and moving third act of "Joan of Arc," with Margaret Anglin in the leading part, and the last act of "Salvation Nell," with Mrs. Piske and Holbrook Blinn in their original parts, the former as Nell and the latter as Jim Platt.

The fun of the evening was supplied by a revival of George Ade's one-act comedy, "Mrs. Peckham's Trouse," with May Irwin reaching the highest point of hilarity as the Carrie Nation, who is brought out of a hint with a couple of glasses of wine and comes to, smiling and warms at everybody. In the cast were Ralph Herz and William Hodge.

Marjorie Wood figured prominently in another laughing hit, "A Quiet Nap," in which two fathers with their diverting quarrel over a game of cards threaten to spoil the marriage of their children, forcing the son to chloroform his father in order to untangle matters and marry the daughter.

George M. Cohan, as the heavy footer of the Fidelity, received an ovation in a little character sketch of his own, and David Warfield and Louis Mann received a cordial welcome in their dialect offerings. Other features were supplied by Rose Ponselle of the Metropolitan Opera company, Julia Arthur, Bessie Wynn, and Chauncey Olcott.

Miss Billie Shaw gave the first of a series of matinee performances on Tuesday afternoon, repeated Thursday and Friday afternoons. She is appearing in five one-act plays of every description, "Gutta Iconoclast," a farce; "Pearls," a drama; "The Good Woman," a protean play; "Squaring the Triangle," a farce, and "Hands," a tragedy. This is the program at the Selwyn. At the Times Square Theater, late in the week, the summer season was ushered in with "The Broadway Whirl," the cast of which embraces such well-known artists as Blanche Ring, Charles Winninger, Richard Carle and Jay Gould.

For a number of attractions Saturday was good-bye night. The closings are: "The Bad Man," with Holbrook Blinn; "The Champion," with Grant Mitchell; "Rollo's Wild Oats," with Roland Young; "Welcome Stranger," "Little Old New York," "The Right Girl," "June Love" and "Deburau." The present week will see the end of "Claire de Lune" and "Enter Madame," while "Irene" stays one week more.

At the Neighborhood Playhouse on Grand-st. the season is also drawing to a close. The final performance of "The Harlequinade" by Granville Barker and Dion Calthrop took place last week and only a few additional performances of the Spanish dancers in "The Royal Fandango," are scheduled for this week at the same house.

At the Greenwich Village Theater the house of uncanny experiments, an attraction has been presented which is a welding of drama and motion pictures, in which a sculptor, the married, falls in love with his model, posed in screen form by Miss Aubrey Munson in the altogether and rather disingenuously merged into the drama. Miss Munson is a famous model in reality and the fugitive glimpses of her afforded by the story furnishes the motif as well as the principal interest. The affair is decidedly crude otherwise. It is one of those experiments that fall short of their possibilities because of inartistic handling.

The broken links between the Rialto and the theatrical art centers of Central Europe are rapidly mending. While American motion picture magnates are said to be buying up German films as fast as they can close the bargain, Oscar Straus of Vienna, is soon coming over to view the American production of his "Last Waltz" and William LeBaron will go to Budapest with Victor Jacobi, the composer, to confer with Franz Molnar, with whom they are to collaborate in a new operet-

St. John Ervine, in whom great interest is centered because of his touch of realism in the various plays of his authorship which have been seen in New York, is reported to be somewhere in England, writing another play. In the meantime the revival of "John Ferguson" at the Garrick by the players of the Theater Guild is promising to fill the house for the limited season to which it is to be confined. Ervine has a finer perception for the hidden pathos of the lives of the common people than any English-speaking playwright. He writes tragedy with a light touch. Where the Russian realists would spread a thick gloom, he expresses the deeper emotions of humankind with a few telling but sketchy pencil strokes, as in the case of "Ferguson" and "Jane Clegg," but he never compromises with his subject. If tragedy it is, it is tragedy from the beginning; he never yields to the happy ending tragedy.

Which suggests the idea that the greatest successes of the stage have been tragedies. To offer a Broadway manager a play without a happy outcome is to tempt fate. It will not be considered. It is doomed unread. If the writer of a play with a tragic ending could corner the Broadway managers long enough to explain his theory, he might convince them that the most successful plays have been tragedies, by pointing out the undying popularity of "Camille" and "East Lynne," both of which have been revived recently; the latter as a motion picture attraction. One of Plinero's most popular plays, "The Second Mrs. Tanquency," was a play without a happy ending; nearly all of Suder-mann's plays, the Ibsen dramas; "Carmen," a popular screen version of which is now on view; even "Uncle Tom's Cabin," may be included in the category, and there is "Hamlet," which has a record of 300 years. I know of a Spanish composer now in the city who is visiting New York for the express purpose of getting on a work of his which has been the rage in all the Spanish-speaking countries, from Madrid to Mexico and has attracted widespread attention in Europe generally. It is just the sort of attraction to catch on, but in the end the hero dies, and because the author and composer refuses to bring him back to life or let him be spared, no manager will look at it. The composer has such absolute confidence in his work that he is willing to put up half the cost of production; but catch a New York manager taking a chance on a final death scene!

Meanwhile "John Ferguson," with its ultimate note of grief, which is the real spice of the play, is defying the art standard of Broadway as Broadway managers interpret it. It shows that there are people who want something gripping in the theater besides the so-called gripping things that are produced with a sheet of tin in imitation of thunder.

The news from Paris is that James K. Hackett has scored a tremendous success in his impersonation of Macbeth at the State-owned Odcon. The French dramatic critics are described as absolutely bewildered by the wealth of interpretation of the American actor. Hackett's last appearance here was as Silas Lapham in the production of the Theater Guild a year ago. His only Shakespearean essay on this side has been in the part of Falstaff, in which his father attained fame. Otherwise he has been prominent mainly in romantic parts. It is announced that Dillingham will bring over the Abbey Theater Players from Dublin in "White Headed Boy."

EXPECTED decision during the past week of the Supreme court on the question of whether the Governor Davis "ripper" bill emergency clause is right or wrong, did not materialize. The court appears to be in no hurry about handing down its opinion. In the meantime, plans are developing apace for a referendum on the measure.

All bills sent to Governor Davis by the Legislature have been disposed of. Out of approximately 250, the Governor vetoed but two, allowed four to become law by lapse of time and signed the remainder. Appropriation bills become law without veto of any item in them. The Brand bill, standardizing the weight of bread loaves, the Dewese measure regulating pawn brokers, the Cornell act directing the state auditor to make an audit of the state's compensation fund, the Burke bill regulating the weight of truck loads, and the Mead proposal increasing salaries of probate judges are among the number just signed.

On six separate occasions, in the interest of various propositions, the Legislature smashed the Smith tax law limitation before it finally voted to suspend it for three years, upon approval of 60 per cent of the voters voting upon the proposition in the November election. Thus seven laws are ripening during the referendum period that will result in higher tax rates.

In addition, there are ten others that contain provisions for tax levies, either by broadening the purposes of existing laws or by entirely new levies. The General Assembly enacted 17 laws that provide for additional levies of taxes, either inside or outside the limitations. Under the influence of these laws taxes are expected to reach levels both in terms of rates and in terms of funds collected from taxpayers never before approached in the history of the state. The volume of funds collected will be increased by 25 per cent at least and possibly by 50 per cent or more. Not a single tax levy was abolished or reduced. Every tax levy bill, without exception, was signed by Governor Harry L. Davis and no referendum has been threatened. The additional load Ohioans will be compelled to carry, in the face of campaign promises by the Republicans for reductions, will be staggering.

The appointment of Roy A. Haynes, of Hillsboro, as national prohibition commissioner is a distinct shock to that wing of the Daugherty-Harding-Willis combination in Republican politics, which favored Newton H. Fairbanks, of Springfield.

It is now believed that the success of Haynes means the launching of the Governorship candidacy of James A. White, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, in 1922. With Willis back of White, Fairbanks' friends are not reasonably expected to become greatly excited over the aspirations of the head of the dry contingent. Haynes succeeds John F. Kramer, of Mansfield.

William E. Halley, of Greenville, chief clerk of the Ohio Senate, is being tipped to be provided with a real job by the national Republican committee, in recognition of his campaign work last fall.

There is reason to believe, however, that Attorney General Daugherty is holding Halley back, intending to use him as manager of his campaign for the United States Senate.

The peremptory dismissal of the General Assembly by Governor Davis has brought speculation as to when, if ever, the chief executive intends to recall the law making body, for the completion of work started and redeeming of promises made in the last campaign. Conditions at Columbus remain at sixes and sevens and there has been no hint of further legislative maneuvering, while the chasm between the Governor and the General Assembly is not narrowing.

COLUMBIA'S OPEN DOOR

FOR a long time sentiment blocked the treaty under which Uncle Sam is paying Colombia, South American republic, $25,000,000 for her rights in the Panama Canal zone. This nation yielded a bit of sentiment to material considerations in pledging the payment. Admirers of the stand that had been taken by former President Roosevelt thought it was yielding too much.

However, the view is taken that time will bring back to America a full equivalent for the $25,000,000 investment in good will. Colombia is promising to spend the annual installments of $5,000,000 for each of five years in public improvements and for materials and machinery she finds the United States the readiest source of supply. Much of the money will be spent here. In other words, in the case of Colombia, Uncle Sam will open a "company store."

Indirectly, however, the advantages incident to the American policy mean vastly more. Our packers are urged to enter a country where cattle are still grazing wild in vast herds. Our oil field explorers will be in on the ground floor. Copper, tin, iron and coal mines will be developed. Colombia claims to have the greatest supply of platinum outside of Russia and science is craving for platinum, just as industry is craving for petroleum.

Therefore, in consideration of these possibilities it is a fair suggestion that Rooseveltian enthusiasts look upon the treaty payment as a closed issue and avoid denouncing what they call "blackmailing" by Colombia. It is admitted that a technical infraction of the principles of international law has come about, but it will likely be liberally atoned for. The United States has the open door to Colombia, as well as to all Spanish America.

Leave it to American business ingenuity to make the most of it.

MISS LIMA: "It is true that the world owes you a living, but it expects you to at least to get on speaking terms with the rudiments of the art of being a collector."

IN WASHINGTON

IF the utterances of United States Ambassador Harvey to the Court of St. James, England, astounded official Washington and caused a wave of resentment to rush up and down across this land, the more recent statements made by Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., in an address in London, have acted as a charge of T. N. T. in Washington and elsewhere in this country.

Sims, if correctly quoted, stated to an audience of Britishers that sympathizers of Ireland in America are asses and in a manner that could not be mistaken, assailed every American who, by his vote, expression of sympathy or loosening of purse strings, is favorable to the Irish cause.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, Democrat, presented a resolution demanding that the statements of Sims be investigated, quickly and thoroughly. Harrison referred to Harvey and Sims as the "gold dust twins." He termed their utterances "an outrage to red-blooded Americans."

So intense has the feeling become that there are being voiced demands for the immediate recall of Harvey and the dismissal of Sims from the navy. These men, personally, have a perfect right to their opinions, but as representatives of the United States government they have no authority to make such statements as have been accredited to them.

Sims' alleged attack on Irish sympathizers in America is all the more indefensible in view of the fact that the United States has not altogether recovered from the effects of a war in which her brave sons fought and nearly 100,000 of them died for the preservation of democracy and for the right of self-determination of nations, large and small. If the remarks accredited to these two representatives of the United States were made for the purpose of carrying favor with England and Britishers for themselves, they should be dismissed quickly. And at the present moment, the indications are that Sims at least will hear the tinware rattle.

It is believed that settlement of the soldier bonus question is near at hand. Early enactment of the soldiers' adjusted compensation bill with five optional plans to reimburse the 4,800,000 men and women who served in the world war, is now predicted by administration leaders.

The most revolutionary changes in party government since the civil war came about during the past week when the Republican national committee adopted a plan which cuts down the representation of the southern states by 23 votes. Under the new rules no congressional district in the country, north or south, is to have even one delegate to the Republican national convention unless it casts 2,500 votes and runs a Republican ticket in the preceding general election. Threat of this action last year at the Chicago Republican convention stirred up a hornet's nest among colored delegates from the south and since the order is effective, it is being roundly condemned. It is termed "the crime of 1921."

Inquiry into the case of Truman H. Newberry, United States Senator from Michigan, charged with violating the corrupt practices act, is proceeding swiftly, with stormy sessions and damaging testimony featuring.

John T. Adams, of Iowa, succeeds Postmaster General Will Hays as chairman of the Republican national committee, while Ralph E. Williams, of Oregon, will be second in command.

GENEROUS LIMA

LIMA has an enviable reputation for assistance in worthy causes. It has never been found lacking when there was real humanitarian work to be done. This spirit is again being shown in the interest of a worthy Lima woman who is deserving of help.

During the last few days The News has asked for subscriptions to a fund which would allow this woman to keep her baby when it is born, which will be soon. The response has been very generous.

This appeal was not made because organized charity in Lima had not done its duty. It has been assisting the woman in every way possible since she became dependent. But charity, with a multitude of cases no less worthy, does not have sufficient funds to do what The News proposes—to supply funds which will allow the mother to keep her babe. If there was sufficient money in the charity treasury, it would be done by that organization.

While the fund is not complete, The News, interested only in this matter from a humanitarian standpoint, desires to extend thanks to those who have contributed and those who will give before the subscription is closed, and to express appreciation for their interest in this worthy woman.

JUST FOLKS—BY EDGAR A. GUEST

HERE'S MY SUCCESS

Here's my success—the roses by the gateway.
The children running gladly up to me.
A simple street of friendship, not a great way,
A bird house and its tenants in a tree.

Here's my success—the kettle singing gayly,
The living room alive with songs and cheer,
A place to fill that needs by presence daily,
The children growing stronger by year.

Here's my success—not fame or high position.
A little home where laughter oft is heard,
A happy table—there's a glorious mission—
A meal that's flavored with the merry word.

Here's my success—a glad wife at the doorway,
Rest and contentment when the day is done;
And thou find life's splendor in the won,
Here loving lips tell me my battling way.

ABE MARTIN

We don't believe we could be heartless enough to chat pleasantly with a calf in the back seat of a Ford all the way to the stockyards and then sell it to a butcher. Manager Craw has advertised for a pianist that can play fever and ague music for "Piet Lynne," at Melodeon Hall, tonight.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown during the death of our son and brother, The Rev. Hoernemann for his consoling words, The Misses Flammer for their beautiful music. Also the Woodmen, Royal Neighbors and the Macabees for their beautiful flowers.
Catherine Schick and family.

WHAT THE STARS PREDICT

This day is uncertain.
It is not a favorable day for love affairs, since jealousy and deception will be prevalent.
Visits to relatives and friends will not be fortunate while this sign prevails.
The mind is subject to severe depression at this time, and care should be exercised to banish all distrustful thoughts.
Letters written today will be fortunate in their results.
Persons whose birthday this is, should avoid all change.
Children born today will be reckless, but very clever.

HEALTH HINTS

WILFUL DIPHTHERIA

When a sufficient majority of the public acquire a little knowledge of hygiene and sanitation it will be no disgraceful to the individual or the family to have wilful diphtheria as it now is for the community to have typhoid fever. For we have today not only an absolute antidote for diphtheria poison, an absolute cure called antitoxin, but also an absolute individual prophylactic or preventive. This preventive or prophylactic against diphtheria is so theory. It is a very simple and absolutely harmless hair of the dog that bite you. It has already been administered to thousands of school children and young children in cities right by noted as centers of intelligence. Such a city is St. Paul, Minnesota. Without any complete statistics on the subject, I venture to say that there is no other city of more than thirty thousand population in an America where there is a higher degree of intelligence to the square foot than you will find in the city of St. Paul.

This assured protection for the individual against infection with diphtheria is quite as safe as ordinary cowpox inoculation against smallpox. It is even less annoying to the person who is to be immunized. In fact there can be no valid objection to it on the part of an intelligent parent or guardian, and it is unfair to the child to withhold this protection when the protection is not only easily available everywhere that doctors live, but is freely offered and urged by all alert and progressive health departments and health officers.

Some children are not susceptible to diphtheria. Such children do not need this prophylactic. Whether your child is or is not susceptible is determined by the Schick test, harmless skin reaction of the same nature as that commonly employed nowadays in testing infants or adults for various food idiosyncrasies or hay fever, or asthma patients for pollen or protein sensitization. St. Paul and other forward-looking cities employ this Schick test successfully upon thousands of young school children.

Diphtheria causes more deaths than typhoid fever. Negligence on the part of parents must now be reckoned responsible for diphtheria in the household.

INEZ AND TRILBY MAY

BY SEWELL FORD

Meet Inez and Trilby May

"WELL, Inez," says I, "you've got your wish. This is New York."

"Yes-s-s," says Inez, blinking twice but not missing her stroke on the gum.

So for a minute we stood there staring across Seventh Avenue at a big hotel with our suitcases parked on the curb. And I'll admit I was a bit disappointed in Inez.

"Of course," says I, "I'm not looking for any landing of the Pilgrims Fathers exercises, or expecting you to make an oration, but doesn't it strike you that this one-syllable stuff of yours is kind of sketchy for the occasion?"

Which jogs Inez into eloquence. She rolls her big gray eyes at me solemn, shifts three cents worth of wintergreen favor from right to left, and remarks: "Lotta noise."

"As usual, Inez," says I, "you have come through with the perfect description. It's a whole of a racket. Doesn't seem to be anything extra going on, either, so I expect it's just the regular big town growl that the whole eighteen blocks, so by the time we had climbed the brown stone steps and been let into the storage vault that was being used as a reception parlor sitting came easy.

Making a trade with Miss Welby, though, was another proposition. She wasn't the regular stage landlady you see in vaudeville sketches or read about in the Saturday Evening Post. You know—a multi-chrome blonde with a battle-axe profile, a cold, suspicious eye, and a voice like a sassafras phone at its worst. No, Miss Welby seems to be a mild spoken, gray-haired old maid with tired eyes and gentle manners. But she wasn't tak-

Dodge. Chuckle if you want to. They generally do. Paw named me after a book and an aunt. He was fond of books, Paw was, and I have a hunch he threw in the May with a fond hope that Auntie might loosen up on something he could put in the bank in my name. I don't know whether she left anything to me or not, but if she did I'll bet it didn't last long. Not if Paw could get it out and spend it. He was that kind. His ideas about dollars was that they were made round so they could roll along.

"Which is one of the seven mystic reasons why I have mighty little past repeats. "Quite an interesting city, I've heard."

"You can play that strong," says I. "It's five miles long, a mile wide and a mile high, and every year they ship enough iron ore out of these to—"

"May I ask," breaks in Miss Welby, "why you left?"

"Absolutely," says I. "To help Inez find her Uncle Nels. That may sound a little odd, too. She looks big enough and husky enough to go out and find three uncles all by herself. But I've been brought up to believe that this was a big, wicked town and I couldn't let Inez risk herself alone here. You see, Inez did something awfully nice for me once. As a matter of fact, she saved my life."

"Really?" says Miss Welby, giving her a curious glance.

"No, she didn't pull me out of Lake Superior, or push away a freight train that was about to run me down," says I. "She lifted me out of Tamarack Junction when I thought I'd taken root there. Of course you don't know Tamarack. You're lucky. It's three miles from Dodge's Clearing, where I lived from the time I was two until I was nineteen, going on twenty. How Paw found it, starting from Connecticut, I never could guess. Maybe he was just trying to lose himself in the pine flats. But when he got to this ten acres of burned over sand, with the little clump of black spruce in the middle, he seemed to be satisfied. Anyway, that's where he settled down and proceeded to grow old."

"He built us a perfectly good home; that is, if you don't care what you say. There were two rooms and a loft—logs laid up with notch-ends and the cracks chinked with mud. Also a frame cook-shed in the back. Paw was always promising to build another room, but he never got around to it. Poor old Paw! He meant well. And then, he was kept rather busy supplying me with new step-mothers. It was the best thing he did, finding someone to marry him. I don't know whether he was out for the long distance record or not, but it looked that way. His score stood at five. Not that he was finicky about the ones he picked. We won't go into all the harrowing details, but they kept getting worse and worse. As for the last Mrs. Ephraim Dodge—Well, I don't blame Paw for getting discouraged. He just quit. Asthma complicated with matrimony."

"Quite a lot of us were left—four different lots. Perhaps I didn't appreciate them as I should, but I'm free to say that we were too mixed. That sort of family life I didn't care for at all. Yet I went on with it; washing and cooking, and chopping wood, herding assorted flocks of youngsters; without ever dreaming there was a way out. Not until that day when I went down to the Junction to sell six quarts of raspberries and found Inez sitting on a baggage truck waiting for the northbound train. I'd never seen her before, but that didn't prevent me talking to her. About then I could have chatted with a one-eyed mule and enjoyed it. And when I discovered that she was leaving home because she, too, had a stepmother that she wasn't altogether crazy about, and an old man who used a rake handle on her now and then—Well, I warmed to her, as the poets say. I wanted to know all about her plans. And Inez told, using her code. 'Home I no like,' says she, 'so I go up on the Range, by Coleraine. I gotta job in mine boarding house.' Then, after a little, she asks: 'You come, too, eh? Plenty jobs.' 'Me!' says I. 'Would you say I was dressed for travelling, Inez?' and I turned around so she could get the full effect of my dollar ninety-eight mail-order morning costume, berry stains, briar tears, and all. Also I added that I hadn't a cent of real money. With that she unwinds a handkerchief, counts out two whole dollars, and says: 'Come.' Just like that."

"What a lot of things you can think of in a few seconds, can't you? I could see myself tramping back to the clearing; the little old shack with the cluttered door yard; the stumpy fields, mostly grown up to fire weed; the burnt woods beyond, naked and dreary. I could see Maw Dodge, slumped down in the doorway, her greasy hair falling over her bleary eyes. I could hear her snarl at me. I could see the old cook stove, the woodpile where I would have to—Well, I took the two dollars and kissed Inez smack on the lips. Before dark we were up in Coleraine, passing beef stew and hot corn bread and apple pie to checking clerks and steam shovel bosses and third assistant engineers. Happy! Say, a kitten chasing its tail couldn't have felt lighter in the head. I knew that I'd crossed Dodge's Clearing off the map for good and all."

"I see," says Miss Welby. "You were grateful to Miss Petersen."

"From my back hair to my big toes," says I. "Maybe the streak was in me all the time, but nobody had ever tapped it before. Tell me, Inez, says I, 'what is it you want most?' Didn't take her by surprise. Nothing does. 'I like to go by picture show to-night,' says she. 'You shall,' says I. 'If I have to wash every dish in the house.' Not that I count such little things as that. I'm only trying to show you how I started on this career of sunshine dispenser, guide and out in the hall and bring in that 'phone directory. That'll be the quickest way to locate Uncle Nels. Ought to be Nelson Petersen, I suppose."

"Petersen?" echoes Inez, and when I looked up she was blinking more stupid than usual.

"Indicating what?" says I. "Heard the name before, haven't you? And if it was your father's, then his brother would be—"

But Inez is moving her head from working girls. Things like that all the time in New York. By Duluth, no."

For speed and duration Inez had broken her speed record. Also, in one grand mental effort she had put into words all her secret and unguessed yearnings. It was like flashing a searchlight into a dark room that you thought was empty, and discovering it to be full of junk theatrical scenery.

But I could account for Inez now.

"You can see for yourself how short I am on looks, I'm long on disposition, though, and my one fatal gift is conversation."

guardian angel. For that's what it amounts to. Ever since then I've been exploring Inez to find out what she wants and getting it for her. And it isn't at all easy—the finding out. For, as you see, Inez isn't much of a converser. She uses words as though she had to pay an income tax on every one and there are times when she'd make the Sphinx seem like a chatter-box. Then again she'll spill half a dozen remarks, all in one evening. Yes, Inez, I'm talking about you again. I'm about through, though. You see, Miss Welby, we'd been in Coleraine nearly six months, when Inez heard that in Duluth there were movies every night and in the course of a few days she let it out that she wanted to go there. 'You shall,' says I. My theory was that if you were willing to wait on table you could go anywhere. You can, too. I believe we could tour the world."

"But with Superior Street lined with movie houses, and a big armory where the band played for public dancing, Inez was just as satisfied as if I'd opened the pearly gates for her. That is, she was until she got a letter from home about this Uncle Nels. They think I ought to find him," says she. "Why?" says I. "Is he lost?" It wasn't that exactly. He was missing, though, and had been for several years. When last heard from he'd been in Duluth. Well, we looked up the address, but he wasn't there. A man said he had gone to New York. At which I told Inez she might as well cross him off the elate. But she shook her head. She had to find Uncle Nels. Why all this rush of affection so late? I asks. "Is he such a star uncle?" He's rich, Uncle Nels," says Inez. "Gosh!" says I. "That's different. A rich uncle deserves to be kept track of." So we saved and saved until we had enough to come. And here we are, Miss Welby."

I suppose she should have shuddered and led us sadly but firmly out to where the brownstone steps started for the sidewalk. But she didn't. Maybe it was the smile I threw in at the finish. Oh my, yes! That's the easiest thing I do, that smile. Not one of these heart thrillers you get from the screen favorites. Nothing like that. Nobody's going to leave home on account of it. And perhaps it's more of a grin, at that. Doesn't mean much, either. It's just my way of signalling to the human race: "Ah, quit kidding! You're not half as bad as you look, and I'm not either. So there!" Anyway, Miss Welby smiled back and led us up to this fourth floor room with two single iron cots and a window overlooking a double row of back yards.

"You will be here for only a short time, I presume?" says she. "Only until we can look up Uncle Nels," says I. "Then I suppose he'll send the limousine for us." So we paid a week in advance and began unpacking the suit cases. "Six, eight, ten books," says I, counting 'em, and three hangers! I'll tell you, Inez: while I'm deciding who gets the odd hanger you slip side to side. "Uncle Nels," says she, "is brother to Ma."

"Oh!" says I. "And that would make him—Nels what?"

"I—I dunno," says Inez. "Wha-a-ah!" I gasps. "Of course you know. What was your mother's name before she got to be Mrs. Petersen?"

"Olson," says Inez. "But—but Uncle Nels, when he go away and get rich—he change his name. I—I forget."

"Hallup!" says I. "That's real interesting, that is. Here we are, come all the way to New York to hunt a stray uncle who's flagging under a name you don't happen to remember. But I expect you have some idea what he looks like?"

"No," says Inez. "I don't see him since I was little."

"Well," says I, settling back on the cot bed and gazing at her stunned. "I must say that makes it complicated."

"Yes-s-s!" says Inez, in that helpful way of hers.

For a party of the second part, that can be indicated by zero minus y, I take pleasure in presenting Miss Inez Petersen, when she drops into a mood like that. For the next forty minutes or so I jab questions at her that would have qualified me for a third degree expert. And at the finish we were about where we started, only I was hoarse and Inez had chewed the flavor all out of her gum.

What she didn't know about this missing uncle of hers was amazing. And it wasn't worrying her a bit.

Then, when I was about to give up, I stubbed my toe on what looked like a clue.

"Inez," says I, turning her 'round so I could look square into the peaceful gray eyes, "can it be true that all you've been feeding me about Uncle Nels was just bunk?"

"No," says she. "I gotta Uncle Nels. I wanna find him."

"That's on record and I expect I'll have to believe part of it," says I. "But honest now, with nothing but a dim memory to go by, how did you think it was to be done?"

Inez simply rolls her eyes up and inspects a leak stain in the ceiling. It's just the same as cutting the wires or shutting a door in your face. But I wouldn't have it that way.

"Come back, Inez," says I. "And tell me: wasn't the big idea of wishing us into this fool excursion just getting to New York?"

That seems to strike the key. "Long time I wanna go by New York," she admits.

"But why?" I insists. "In the name of all that's simple, why?"

At that Inez ducks her chin, as kittenish as a cow playing tag with a Billy goat. She almost works up a blush too.

"Aw, I dunno," says she. "But so much happens by New York—fine fellers in full dress suits, swell ladies with long pearl chains, burglars breakin' in, policemen smashin' doors, automobiles runnin' round, and—millionaires get in love with poor

She had developed a movie mind. Somewhere underneath that double bank of wheat-colored hair wound like a wreath around her head, and back of those Holstein eyes, was a space that had become crowded with the things she had seen on the screen.

No use telling her it wasn't all true. What she had seen pictured true. What she had taken in as actual as if angels had apoloized from the sky. More than that, from the things I had done for her in the past two years, she was sure I could lead her straight to where all her rosy dreams would come true. Hadn't I taken her from the mine boarding house in Coleraine to Druct's in Duluth, and from there to New York? Wouldn't I manage all the rest? So she sits placid and yanks her gum.

And I am, stranded in a fourth floor back on West 57th Street, with a 180-pound Swede girl who thought all you had to do to hop into gay adventure and ruddy romance was to find the way to Fifth Avenue!

"Inez," says I, "I don't know whether to list you as a merry jest or a grim tragedy. Anyway, you're a world beater. I'm not forgetting, though, that it hadn't been for you I would be still stuck in Dodge's Clearing as fast as any spruce stump. I'm not the forgetting kind. That is why I have made it my life job to give you what you want. Anyway, I shall do my best."

"If I may say so, though, it strikes me that your notions of coming on and breaking into the giddy whirl of the metropolis are a bit high colored and a little impetuous. I'm not sure I've been wrong about you once or twice before. There's no telling. It may be that somewhere in all this messy, noisy burg there awaits a handsome young plutocrat who is all gussied up for passionate wooing beside a marble fountain—waiting for you. And his dark, villainous rival may be lurking behind the potted palms, ready to put a crimp in the course of true love. I can't say."

"But if they were holding the curtain on any such act just because you hadn't arrived, they don't need to wait any longer. It's only a case now of somebody's handing them the cue that you're here. I've brought you on and we are listening for the cue. As for my part of it, I feel just as much at home as if I'd been appointed guardian to a trick elephant with the sleep-walking habit. All the same, I'm going to stand by you, and if anything like you've got on your mind is going to be pulled off, you'll be on hand. Only, Inez, it may take a little time."

And Inez, sitting on the edge of a sagging cot bed, with a pleased, simple expression fluttering across her big pink and white face, nods solemn and satisfied.

"Oh, yes-s-s!" says she. "She had been in New York nearly two hours and no talk, dark here in a shiny limousine had claimed her as yet. But she's a patient soul, Inez. And then, she has her gum."

we'll have to get used to. And here's another one of those taxi pirates that I've got to shoo off."

But he didn't shoo as easy as the other five. He almost grazes the toe of Inez's No. 9's with his front tire as he pulls up in front of us, holds out a stubby thumb and asks husky: "Taxi, lady?"

"Thanks for the flattery, Buddy," says I, "but honest now, after another good look, would you say we'd be the kind that was yearning to pay four bits for a ride in a wheezy tin Hank with wabby fenders?"

"Ahr, say, girllies, I'll make it right," says he, twistin' his ugly face into what he thought would pass for a smile. "Where you goin'?"

"What's your choice, Inez?" says I. "The Ritz or the new Ambassador?"

Two blinks. That's a sign, Buddy. That she hasn't made up her mind, so you'd better roll along before Lizzie's asthma gets worse."

He rolled, too, and before the next one could hail us I had dashed out and got a tall traffic cop to tell me how to find this furnished room house that a friend of mine had loaned me the address of. We walked ing in a pair of cross-mated stray females like us just because it was a sporty thing to do. And the next I knew the third degree was well under way.

"Let me see," says she, "I suppose you have references?"

"Eh?" says I, catching my breath quick. "Oh, yes. It was Miss Fipps, the day shift cashier in Druct's, where we worked in Duluth, who referred us to you. She had a cousin, a perfect 36, in some waist department, who roomed here once. Miss Fipps got the number from her."

Miss Welby indulged in a bored smile and shook her head. "Rather vague, isn't that?" she asks. "You see, I make it a rule not to rent my rooms to young women unless I know something about them; a good deal, in fact."

"If that's a cue for the story of our lives," says I, "here goes. It won't take long. I'm just Trilby May

"Yes," says Miss Welby, "I can discover no speech impediment. And your friend?"

"Inez Petersen," says I, prompt. "She was born plain Miss Petersen, and it must have been when she was little and cute that they hung the Inez on her. She's Swede on both sides and she's a lovely girl. You can tell that by the placid way she handles her gum. We're from Duluth, Minnesota, as Inez would pronounce it—Meen-ah-soda—chant-ed through the nose as if it were a solo."

Miss Welby doesn't seem either thrilled or convinced. "Duluth," she

FIGURATIVELY SPEAKING, I WAS SENTENCED TO CROSS THE GREAT DIVIDE

"Nothing whatever can be done for her." That was the sentiment of a number of eminent physicians and surgeons, in the Hospital, after a thorough examination of the case. After being confined in bed for seventeen days, at home, then taken to a baggage car for transportation to Lima, on a stretcher. I was then conveyed in an ambulance to the Hospital, to learn my fate, which was pronounced Cancer of the Womb, and incurable. From there,
 I was taken to a relative in Lima, placed in bed again, and could retain nothing on my stomach, food or medicine. It was then my husband heard of Dr. George, 222 N.
 West-st., Lima, Ohio, Specialist on Chronic diseases, recommended from highly reliable sources, who was called at once, in on my case.
 That was the turning point. Like Magic, I started to improve. His treatment started on the 14th day of March, 1921. One month ago, I returned home in a passenger coach, on a stretcher. My appetite is fine, general health supreme.
 I have been asked what I think of Doctor George's treatment. I have this to say. After investigation, I learn that cancer of the womb was never known to be cured. I have also learned that my case is not the only case of the kind that has reached the same results thru his remarkable treatment.

My husband was talking with a party that had cancer of the bowels, five inches in diameter, and who
 Dr. George cured and all Lima knows it. His great success in the treatment of cancer is, he says, that he does not treat the cancer, direct, but indirect. That, he says, is the reason that caustic action, surgery, the knife, Radiation or anything that is applied direct to the difficulty will never succeed. It is not done that way.

Cancer is not propagated from the outside. It starts from the inside, but the sad part of the whole difficulty is this. It requires a scientific specialist on Chronic diseases, to do such things. Otherwise the whole effort will be crowned with failure.

MRS. ANNA YAZELL,
 Alger, Hardin Co., O.

SHORT SHAVINGS

"North," said Mrs. Dedbeat, from the top of the stairs, "tell that man who is ringing the doorbell that I am not receiving today."

The servant girl went to the door and said something to the man; then she stepped into the hall and called upstairs:

"I told him you were not receiving today, mum. But he says he ain't deliverin', he's collectin'!"

At a cricket match played in the park of a well known baronet it was found necessary to secure the services of one of the footmen as umpire. In due course the baronet went in. He stopped the second ball with his leg, and the cry of "How's that?" was raised:

decision rested, and, turning to his master, he said, in a half apologetic tone:

"I'm afraid I must say 'Not at home,' Sir John."

"Not at home?" retorted the baronet; "what do you mean?"

"Well, then, Sir John," replied the footman, "if you will 'ave it, I mean that you're hout."

"You know Bobbins, the tenor, who used to sing to Miss Skeezicks that every morn he would bring violots?"

"Yes; did he?"

"That's what he did, and they got married and now they're living in the country where every morn he has to bring her two buckets of water and help wipe the dishes."

"I was surprised to see you in conversation with a notorious gambler," remarked the dominie. "Were you aware of his general reputation?"

"Most undoubtedly," replied the deacon, "I was trying to find out where to cash in the various poker chips I find in the collection basket."

BRIDAL GIFTS

THE GIFT you make the Bride should show exceeding good taste in its selection. Indiscriminate choice is unappreciated.

What can be nicer than a wise selection of pretty silver? Silverware, well chosen, is the most charming and durable of all gifts and please the bride the best.

Where can you make a better choice than here where excellent taste and good judgment are exercised in providing the assortment for you to choose from? We will be glad to help you.

GIRLS! LEMONS BLEACH SKIN

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delectable lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—Adv.

Simmons Says:

There is real comfort and enjoyment when you wear shoes that are in good condition.

Then, too, the economy of repairing your shoes saves you many dollars on a new pair. I use only the finest leather that are obtainable and the expert repairman do the level best to give you the best satisfaction.

Alemite High Pressure Lubricating System consists of one of our flexible steel hoses for all points of lubrication. Alemite built check fittings for any make or model of car, truck, or tractor to take the place of oil cups and grease guns. Easily installed by anyone. Priced from $7.85 to $30.00, depending upon the number of points of lubrication and style of fittings.

Cohesion: What it means in your chassis bearings

A LEAD bullet, carefully sawed apart and brought together under pressure with a slight twisting motion, will stick together almost as one solid piece.

This is called cohesion and is a characteristic of all metals. But, if a small portion of grease is applied to either surface cohesion is impossible—the surfaces are held apart.

The chassis bearings of your car are constantly being brought to bear upon each other under great pressure, with the same sliding or twisting motion.

Unless a film of lubricant is between the two moving surfaces great damage results to the bearings, which in turn is reflected in depreciation and increased maintenance every unit of your car. Rattles and squeaks—indications of excessive wear—mean weakened parts, which oftentimes endanger life and necessitate expensive replacements.

Alemite High Pressure Lubricating System successfully combats cohesion by packing every bearing with clean, new grease under pressure of 500 pounds to the square inch. Every bearing on your car may be lubricated with Alemite in less than thirty minutes.

Alemite High Pressure Lubricating System is standard equipment on over 200 leading makes of cars, trucks and tractors.
